Silver About to Flood the Country with Money from the Treasury Vaults—Big Fire at Jersey City

The Latest Indian Agency Scandal

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—The Tribune's Washington special gives the particulars of the last Indian scandal. It appears that a man named McGillycuddy, Mescalum of Oregon in print under the name called the Council Fire ostensibly in Indian interests wanted to confer with the crafty and mischief making Sioux chief, but McGillycuddy forbade him doing so. Bland showed a pass from the secretary of the interior authorizing him to enter the reservation, but Bland refused to leave and was forcibly ejected by the Indian police. He now makes charges against the agent. He managed to get in communication with Red Cloud who makes the usual charges of bad faith of the government and bad conduct of the agent. Bland charges that Bishop Hare and Mr John Robinson missionaries at Pine Ridge are fully cognizant of Agent McGillycuddy's frauds and misbehavior and yet for some reason shield him. Mrs. Draper, according to Bland, was sent by Bishop Hare from her place as a teacher, says "Mrs Draper informed me that she was reprimanded her for not attending the agency school buildings gotten up by the agent and wife although on such occasions it was indulged in freely among the agent's guests and the company." Such charges as those are characteristic of Bland's alleged grievance. He supplies the eastern papers with fresh material against the Indian bureau.

Edison Makes an Explanation

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—Inventor Thomas A. Edison's recent electric improvements. Field's statement concerning the use of electric motors with an elevator and he calls that applying electric railroad and says "It will go up and down, it will go along on a track. I have but three miles long, at Menlo park on which the rate of forty-two miles an hour with the electric motor and carrying six or eight persons, could not go on with it, because I had too many other things to attend to and in connection with my electric light. Field's people are afraid they will lose their patent and wanted to consolidate with me. The practical points of the invention are mine. I consolidated with Field since then they have done nothing. I had separate from them in this matter I should have supported the case and would have won. The papers were consolidated I do not need to do this, because I did not defend the case, he would withdraw his patent from the pool. I am glad to let him withdraw after having pooled his patent and having allowed him to get his desires. He could not have got it on such nonsense as the elevator."

Mexico Trying to Borrow Money

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—It is stated that the new president of Mexico has sent an agent to New York to try to negotiate a loan of $60,000,000. The public the story goes owes that the sum above named and has been obtained, only of course that she must pay it back. It will be trouble. As the government has no money to pay it except by borrowing, Diaz turns to American capitalists whose citizens have indicated confidence in the future of Mexico, by putting millions of dollars into railroads there at the rate offered goes on to say that if a loan is effected by the usual method of national bonds, it will be special security offered.

A Rich Find

[illegible], Aug 4—[Special]—William B. [illegible], cashier of the Pacific bank here lately made large purchases of land in different parts of the island. The bank directors held a special meeting and asked him in regard to the purchases. [illegible] them if his accounts were not correct, they were compelled to acknowledge that they found them so after the closest scrutiny. Chadwick thought his purchases did not concern them. It leaked out that Chadwick discovered gold and silver in the cellar of his own house buried under an old stone floor. He refused any information. The story is believed to have some foundation, from the fact that members of his family have exhibited rare and curious coins.

The Reunion of Army Chaplains

[illegible], N J Aug 4—The final services of the reunion of chaplains of the Union and Confederate armies and the Christian and sanitary commissions were attended by large numbers of people. Gen. George H. Stuart and General Clinton B. Fisk delivered eulogies on Bishop Simpson. Rev. Mr. [illegible], chaplain of the Twenty seventh Wisconsin regiment, presided. At the close of the services reminiscences were heard from chaplains of both sides after which all joined hands and sang "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love." This closed a most interesting meeting.

A. T. Stewart's Estate.

New York, Aug 4—Judge Hilton executor of A. T. Stewart's estate, filed in the United States circuit court to-day an answer to the suit of Alex. T. Stewart of Scotland, who claims to be the legal heir of A. T. Stewart, and who charges that Hilton tampered with him, and his imbecility bribed him to sign a release of all claim he might have to the estate. Judge Hilton says that claimant was perfectly responsible, and signed the release and received $24,000, and offers if this $24,000 is paid back that he will regard the release as not signed.

The Laboring Men

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—The Central labor union says the receipt of plenty of money for the Bartholdi pedestal. Cigar makers painters tailors and others said that members of their unions will join in a workingmen's parade and would carry the respective industries. The parade committee reported that 30,000 tickets had already been distributed for 30,000 more.

Marriage of an Aged Couple.

[illegible], Aug 4—[Special]—Rev. John B. Curtis, a Methodist clergyman 85 years of age, of a quiet village near here has just married Mrs. Louisa Hoover aged 63. She had been a widow for eighteen years. When a little girl she was a member of the Sunday school class of which he was teacher and she was married to her first husband by him.

Old Compositors

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—Speaking of a certain San Francisco printer who served at the case half a century, a correspondent writes to the Post that Michael Quinn of the Erie Dispatch has been a compositor since 1834 and was employed on the London Times and on the New York Evening Post.

Congressional Investigation

[illegible], Aug 4—The congressional investigation of the soldiers home is now in progress. The committee consists of Generals Rosecrans and Slocum and Representatives Murray and Cutcheon. A number of witnesses have been examined and considerable important testimony taken up to noon.

New York Notes

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—William Butler Duncan will be the orator on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone of the Bartholdi statue Tuesday. [illegible] against whom judgment for $5,000 was rendered damages to a milkman has announced to the ground that the horse was not his.

Amalgamated Association.

[illegible], Aug 4—Nearly all the delegates to the annual convention of the Amalgamated association arrived here to-morrow have arrived. The convention will be in session three or four days and every state in the Union in which iron or steel is manufactured will be represented.

The Rush to the Seaside

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—Yesterday was an unusually warm, and the greatest day for summer travel of this season. Between 2 and 3 it is estimated 150,000 people were on Coney island and Rockaway. The police report excellent order.

The Cotton Crop

[illegible], Aug 4—The national cotton exchange reports for July are more favorable on the [illegible] condition which has improved about 10 per cent in [illegible] up to 86 against 85 for June and 82 for [illegible].

SILVER VS GOLD

The Government under the Necessity of Resorting to the Former

[illegible], August 4—[Special]—The Times says the United States treasury statement shows that the decrease in gold certificates outstanding is $ millions. This fact is regarded by bankers as a warning, for when the issue of gold certificates ceases to that point where it cannot be increased, new certificates or silver coin must surely come. In the means of settling clearing house balances, the treasury. It was said yesterday that it was only a matter of time when the sub treasury would have to pay the clearing house balances in silver. "I do not want silver," said a gentleman. "The banks dislike to handle it and individuals will not stand silver dollars if they can possibly help it. Of course however by the neglect to comply with the movement of silver coinage virtually forced on the people of the country. Then it must take some time, while at least there seems to be no place where there will be no more gold certificates as well, when those outstanding are absorbed the clearing institutions will have to come down to silver as the best grace it can."

BANK PRESIDENTS INTERVIEWED

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—The Evening Post interviewed bank presidents regarding the decrease in the treasury and the prospects of silver payment. Mr. Tappan of the Gallatin bank said: "If the government persists in the government from payment, it will soon bring silver and banks will have to take it, of course in silver certificates and such it would need a horse and cart to carry it, each bank would need a horse and cart. The government is losing gold on paying out part of the balance, in its government, paying a half or a third will be paid in silver. The change may I have an important effect on the business at of course it will unsettle foreign exchange and weaken American credit. Many of our bonds may be thrown on the market in Europe."

The president of the Park bank said: "We do not regret the coming necessity which will compel the treasury would be under of paying its debts in silver. The necessity of paying silver was only a question of time. The treasury will take silver and pay it out, but gold will go to a premium and foreign exchange would be forced to the extent of the premium. The return to a silver means a return to higher prices. Since January the treasury has lost $20,000,000 in gold and the decline in gold reserve during last week went some this last summer present, some relief but the treasury may be only support."

MORE HONORS TO GREELY AND PARTY.

Grand Parade in the Day and Reception in the Evening

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug 4—The city is thronged with public and private buildings are decorated and Welcome to our Arctic Heroes is displayed everywhere. The harbor is filled with craft laden with people.

At 11 30 amid considerable enthusiasm, Commander Schley, Lieutenant Emory and Commander Coffin disembarked. Following them were other officers of the Greely expedition and sailors of the Thetis, Bear and Alert. They were enthusiastically greeted as they landed, and the [illegible] passed forward to shake their hands.

A roar of welcome went up. At 11 o'clock Greely was discovered with [illegible] lades coming toward the landing in the [illegible] barge. Greely was clothed in white and wore a slouched hat and wearing spectacles. As he and his companions alighted all the crowd went [illegible] and Greely leaned upon Powell and [illegible] reached a hat. His every movement indicated [illegible]. His comrades received much attention. [illegible] placed in a coach and immediately drove to the [illegible] house. It having been decided that [illegible] would not appear in the procession. [illegible] gathered to catch a glimpse of [illegible].

THE PROCESSION

At 12 20 the procession [illegible]. The streets were packed and [illegible] the sailors of the relief squadron [illegible] although out to the end of [illegible] Schley, Lieutenant Emery and [illegible] were received with [illegible] applause.

As the head of the procession neared the Rockingham house, where Lieutenant Greely and the survivors were awaiting [illegible] were of the crowd became so great [illegible] was delayed several minutes [illegible] comrades were seated on [illegible] cheer greeted him. [illegible] Bear and Alert passed Greely [illegible] seemed to look his gratitude [illegible] resented him from an Arctic [illegible] affecting. Commanders Schley [illegible] and Emery raised their hats [illegible].

Among the [illegible] stand were Secretary Chandler [illegible] Mayor Lathrop [illegible] Samuel J. Randall [illegible] York and officers of the [illegible] and the North Atlantic squadron [illegible] of the city government [illegible] New England cities.

The procession was [illegible] at 2 o'clock. Shortly after the invited guests were entertained at dinner by the city of Portsmouth.

THE FORMAL WELCOME

Portsmouth [illegible] of citizens in Music hall [illegible] and the official welcome [illegible] Greely and surviving companions [illegible] and was characterized [illegible] the audience and on the [illegible] the North Atlantic [illegible] in the front seats [illegible] crews of the Thetis, the Bear and the Alert [illegible] enthusiastically [illegible] hall as were their officers [illegible] Secretary W. E. Chandler [illegible] General Hazen, chief signal officer, Admiral Luce [illegible] Wells, General [illegible] Congressman Samuel J. Randall, Congressman Robinson, Governor Hale of New Hampshire and Senator Hale of Maine occupied seats on the stage.

The meeting was called to order by Rev. W. A. McGinley. Rev. W. H. Alden made a prayer and was followed by Mayor [illegible] of Portsmouth, who read an address in which he extended the hospitality of the [illegible] of Portsmouth to Greely and his little band.

SECRETARY CHANDLER'S REMARKS

Rev McGinley then announced that a committee of citizens had secured the Hon William E. Chandler's consent to act as permanent chairman of the meeting. When Secretary Chandler came forward to address the meeting he was very warmly applauded. When he referred to the efforts of S. J. Randall in the house of representatives, and Senator Hale in behalf of the Greely relief [illegible] as well as the noble work of Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieutenant Emory the audience became almost wild with enthusiasm.

Mr Chandler in his address told the story of the organization and the object of the Greely expedition and said that in 1883 the Proteus was again employed by the chief signal officer for a voyage to Lady Franklin bay and placed in charge of Lieutenant Garlington, of the Seventh United States cavalry and the steamer Yantic of the United States navy commanded by Commander Wilder was detailed as a tender to accompany the Proteus. Lieutenant Garlington was informed by the letter of the chief signal officer of June 6, 188 of the extreme peril of Lieutenant Greely and his party. It was enjoined upon him to push his vessel through to Lady Franklin bay, and was instructed also as follows:

GARLINGTON'S INSTRUCTIONS

"It should be especially apparent that the vessel cannot be pushed through, you will retreat from your advanced position and land your party and all stores [illegible] Lyttleton island. At Lyttleton island discharge the relief vessel with orders to return to St. John's, Newfoundland, and prepare for remaining with your party until relieved next year. Lieutenant Garlington was further instructed as soon as possible from this station at Lyttleton island to endeavor to communicate with Lieutenant Greely by sledge parties."

Chandler then gave a detailed history of the expedition and of reached follows. The expedition of 1883 as well as that of 1882 was a failure. No attempt was made by either Lieut. Garlington or Commander Wilder to establish a part at Littleton island for which point Lieutenant Greely was under orders to start not later than September 1. The army court of inquiry under date of January 15, 1884 reported:

It may here be stated roundly that from July 1882 to August 1883 of less than 5000 rations were taken on the steamers Yantic and Proteus up to and beyond Littleton island. Of this number only about 1000 were left in the vicinity the remainder being returned to us or sunk with the Proteus.

A TRIBUTE TO ALL CONCERNED

Mr Chandler then related the history of the successful effort of Commander Schley and comrades to rescue Greely and paid a deserved tribute to all concerned. He said to the rescuers and the rescued of this expedition of 1884 that the receptions of Friday and today have been most fitly given and we are here assembled to do them honor. But our first duty is to pay our tribute of praise and of mourning to those devoted men who having completed their two years of fruitful labor [illegible] Sabine and after months of [illegible] starvation [illegible] fortitude and patience perished [illegible] on the field of duty as if they had met the fate of the cannon's mouth. The people of the United States look back upon their record with sad, though mournful pride and wherever throughout the world the story of their heroic endurance and suffering is told the memory of these martyrs of duty will forever be cherished and held [illegible] tenderness. [illegible] the only survivors of the American Arctic expedition [illegible] further toward the pole than any previous explorer [illegible] whose observations [illegible] added into the polar [illegible] of you [illegible] and men of [illegible] expedition your country extends a cordial welcome upon your safe return. [illegible] you have accomplished [illegible] in bringing your [illegible] who shared the dangers and [illegible] of the Greely relief expedition of 1884.

Greely Speaks.

Governor [illegible] and Samuel J. Randall addresses [illegible] that it was impossible for Lieutenant Greely and his party to be present owing to failing health [illegible] to lay a certain [illegible] He then introduced O. A. Nesmith brother of Mrs. Greely, who feelingly thanked Secretary Chandler and Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieutenant Emory for their work of rescue. He was evidently much affected with emotion and his reference to Mrs. Greely's gratitude were very touching.

General Butler [illegible] tremendous applause. He spoke [illegible] acquaintance with Greely [illegible] as a sad eyed student [illegible] travel. He said the thanks of the nation were due to Queen Victoria for the gift of the Alert. At [illegible] explorations, [illegible] he thought American [illegible] would never rest until the North Pole was reached. He thought [illegible] and advance on the Arctic [illegible] slowly establishing depots as they moved. The North Pole belonged to the United States he said and he predicted that their territory would soon embrace the entire western hemisphere. In closing he said Americans needed to enable them to realize all their possibilities was a thorough knowledge of the principles of their government. The meeting closed about midnight.

THE FIRE RECORD.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES

A Deplorable State of Affairs in Turkey.

PARTICULARS OF THE THAMES DISASTER

Waddington's Recall Demanded by Parisian Papers—Stormy Session of a Constitutional Congress—Old World Notes

ENGLAND

BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS IN TURKEY

London, Aug 4—[Special]—An English gentleman of great experience who resided for thirty years in Turkey has just returned to London and gives some interesting details as to the condition of affairs in Constantinople and Turkey generally. He says that the civil list of the present sultan is less than that of his immediate predecessor. It seems that the first charge of Turkish revenue is wages for the palace. The sultan is in such constant dread of assassination that imagined terrors frequently render him entirely unfit for business. The condition of the people in the interior of Turkey is far worse than it was thirty years ago. Taxation is heavier and continues to be very unjustly levied. Tax gatherers to cover their own deficiencies often return as defaulters persons who have a ready paid their dues but so slight is the chance of obtaining justice that this official system of robbery is generally successful and unresisted.

THE THAMES DISASTER.

Particulars of the collision and sinking of the steamer Dione in the Thames on Saturday night state that there were a great many pleasure passengers on board the vessel. It was a clear moonlight night. The collision occurred about midnight with the large iron steamer Camden just off Gravesend. The Dione's port side was stove in, and the vessel keeled over and sank in two minutes. Seventeen persons were drowned. Those saved rushed on deck and jumped overboard, half dressed, and were rescued by tugs. The scenes were heart rending. Ladies imploring men to save their children. Many women were carrying infants. One mother placed her infant on a floating crate. The crate drifted away but was found later off Thames haven with the infant alive. The captain of the Dione was saved.

REFORM DEMONSTRATION

London, Aug 4—A vast reform demonstration occurred at Birmingham to-day. John Bright and Joseph Chamberlain and the president of the board of trade were in the procession, which was of enormous length. Thousands crowded the streets along the route. Two hundred thousand people assembled upon the grounds where the reform demonstration took place. The meeting comprised nine divisions. There was excellent order and the weather was fine.

IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, Aug 4—Gladstone stated in the commons to-day that he would ask the house to-morrow to vote a credit for the expedition for the relief of General Gordon. He will at the same time make statements of the steps the government purposes to take, in consequence of the failure of the Egyptian conference.

The amount of credit Gladstone will propose in the commons to-morrow will be £300,000.

MARQUIS TSENG NOT AFRAID

London, Aug 4—[Special]—Marquis Tseng, formerly Chinese minister to France, in speaking of the Franco-Chinese imbroglio ridiculed French threats and said that with the Madagascar and the Egyptian questions unsettled France would never dare go to war with China.

COLLISION OF VESSELS AT SEA

London, Aug 4—The British brigs Belle Star from Nova Scotia for Queenstown and the Richard Owen from Cardiff for St. Johns came in collision at sea. The Owen sunk and four of her crew were drowned. The rest of her crew are at Queenstown.

FRANCE

WADDINGTON'S RECALL DEMANDED

Paris, Aug 4—One section of the Paris press demands the recall of Waddington, French ambassador at London, author of the Anglo-French agreement which was defeated in the Egyptian conference. It is reported that Waddington offers to resign. Figaro referring to the subject says: "Waddington's successor must display greater energy against the spread of English power. The French and English interests are now completely opposed and a conflict is inevitable in the near future." The rupture of the conference the paper says is a grave enough event, but it hopes it will not have to announce that the latent conflict has passed to open hostilities.

La République Française maintains that although the agreement has lapsed England has admitted the claims of France to special rights in Egypt. France, this paper says must vindicate her rights. England has not evicted Europe from Egypt. England's asserted freedom and power of action are delusive.

A STORMY SESSION

Paris, Aug 4—The opening session of the congress composed of the two houses of parliament which assembled at Versailles to-day to undertake a revision of the constitution was exceedingly uproarious and the proceedings broke up in great disorder. After a stormy session Le Royer presided to about the starting assembly, [illegible] which was agreed to. Both the right and the left took part in the interruptions. As soon as the matter was disposed of Minister Ferry ascended the tribune to introduce a scheme of revision. Andrieux and others at once protested that Ferry was out of order. It was contended that committees ought to be elected first. As Andrieux was ascending the tribune the members formed a semi-circle around him and a scene of wild excitement ensued. The president thereupon put his hat on and suspended the sitting.

DEATHS FROM CHOLERA

Marseilles, Aug 4—Between 3 and 3 to-day there were three deaths here from cholera.

Marseilles, Aug 4 7 P. M.—There have been seven deaths from cholera since this morning. Only three cases were admitted into the Pharo hospital to-day. Sixty cases are being treated there now.

Marseilles, Aug 4—10 P. M.—During the past 24 hours there have been twenty-eight deaths here from cholera.

Toulon, August 4—There were four deaths here last night. Physicians fear that the return of people to unhealthy lodgings will cause a fresh outbreak possibly an outbreak of smallpox and typhoid fever.

Toulon, Aug 4 6 P. M.—There have been no deaths from cholera here to-day. The total number of cases now under treatment is 109. There was one death to-day at La Seyne and two at Moulford.

WHEN THE SWALLOWS HOMEWARD FLY

Marseilles, Aug 4—The fact that swallows which migrated at the outbreak of the pestilence have not yet returned, and there are no sparrows at all in the city, it is regarded as evidence that the atmosphere is still vitiated. This migration of birds made a deep impression upon the public and led to a demand for the purification of the atmosphere by bonfires.

CHOLERA STEAMER AT CARDIFF

Cardiff, Aug 4—The steamer Rischbangeys from Marseilles is anchored in Penarth roads. Before leaving Marseilles four cases of cholera were taken from the vessel to the Pharo hospital. Dr. Paine [illegible] pronounced the steamer perfectly healthy.

THE SOUDAN

MAHDI STILL FIGHTING

London, Aug 4—According to the latest advices the Mahdi is now fighting negro tribes at or il Gebel Kadir, who refused to join him. It is asserted that he dispatched a force to Khartoum under orders to take Gordon alive or dead. He ordered wells between Korosko and Berber to be filled up. The sultan of Zanzibar sent a message to Gordon inviting him to [illegible].

[illegible] Harpers—[illegible] in the [illegible]

[illegible] meeting held to-night at Irving hall [illegible] the hall was crowded [illegible] Robert J. Nooney [illegible] opening speech said that [illegible] and worked harder than Irving hall [illegible] nomination of Governor Cleveland [illegible] in every way worthy of the [illegible] support of the democratic party.

State Controller Chapin in a speech advised his hearers not to be blinded by the brilliant arguments and promises of James G. Blaine who was a bold bad man and skilled in every political art. The leader could not be placed upon a single act of Cleveland which was inconsistent with his general character for integrity and honesty. Whatever political honors he had gained were obtained by his own earnest and individual efforts. During the [illegible] of a state like New York required the highest kind of executive ability. Governor Cleveland had filled the office with honor and credit to himself and benefit to the people and he was eminently fitted for that higher field to which he was called.

Hugh J. Malone of California predicted success of the democratic ticket on the Pacific coast.

The last speaker was John R. Fellows. Resolutions indorsing the democratic presidential candidates and pledging the organization to the support of the ticket were adopted.

A NUT FOR THE HARPERS TO CRACK

Philadelphia, Aug 4—[Special]—The Press has the following editorial: We publish elsewhere a letter from Harper & Brothers in answer to our inquiry whether they sought to become publishers of Blaine's book, and whether their offer was declined. They frankly said they did offer to publish his book and the offer was not accepted, because as they explained Blaine was already committed to another house. But Harpers say they have no personal spite and their opposition to Blaine began as far back as 1879. Just here comes in a very pertinent letter of J. W. Harper Jr. making application for Blaine's book and written only a little over a year ago four years after 1879. In that letter addressed to Field in Washington Harper pronounced a most fervid panegyric upon Blaine which declares the popular pulse beats strongly in admiration and affection for the man who has been absolutely fearless in his patriotism. He lays stress on Blaine as a brave fighter and gallant leader in the most critical events of the nation's history. Now do the Harpers propose Blaine up at the tribunal of character? How do they reconcile this assertion with Harper's letter of last year?

THE ELECTION IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala Aug 4—There was no opposition whatever to the democratic state ticket and very little of a party character in any of the county contests. In counties where there was no excitement except where the candidates were running, counties that made no nominations and there were many. Thus the local issues of the democrats brought out a fair vote. The hot[illegible] was in Mobile between the democratic nominees and the independent ticket and in Birmingham between the democrats and a combination of republicans and greenbackers. Those two points were hotly contested. Not half a dozen republican legislative candidates were running in the state. The vote of this city is about 1500 democratic and there was no opposition.

A LETTER FROM CLEVELAND

New York, August 4—Governor Cleveland sends the following letter to the eighth assembly district county democracy association:

"Your letter of the 18th, informing me of the endorsement of the ticket lately nominated at Chicago by the eighth assembly district Cleveland and Hendricks club is received. I am glad the [illegible] entered early upon the work of organization which I deem absolutely essential to success. I assure you I should be glad to be present at the meeting to be held on this occasion but my official duties and the increase of labor caused by the engagement made for me by the Chicago convention will prevent my taking part in the [illegible] and ratification.

Yours sincerely, GROVER CLEVELAND"

THE PRESIDENT

New York, Aug 4—[Special]—A Catskill special says: President Arthur is expected here Tuesday. His headquarters will be the Hotel Kaaterskill. He will spend ten days and will visit Stamford [illegible] hill the many popular resorts. A great many guests are arriving here representative men from several large cities and generally all [illegible] are Blaine and Logan. General Sharpe now entertains the president at Kingston. He is a warm friend of Blaine, and says "It is my study to stop so that Arthur is indifferent to the latter's prospects. He is too good a republican for that and he takes an interest in the success of the republican ticket. I know this to be so."

MASSACHUSETTS GREENBACKERS

Boston, Aug 4—The executive committee of the greenback state committee met to-day and decided to call a state convention for September 4 at 11 o'clock. Secretary Hutchinson said General Butler had told the committee who approached him on his nomination that he accepted the action of the people might put any construction they pleased to his acceptance. He wanted a letter of acceptance, and he [illegible] before the election the national party would put in nomination a straight ticket of electors.

LOCAL ELECTION IN KENTUCKY

Lexington, Ky Aug 4—The election days resulted in a democratic majority for [illegible]. At the court house a dispute arose between County Attorney Stewart democrat and J. G. Geers republican resulting in Geers shooting Stewart through the head, killing him instantly. Another row which resulted in the deaths of Cleary and Dick Murphy in which Cleary was [illegible] emboweled and has since died. This resulted from an old difficulty and was in no way the result of the election.

KEIFER SHELVED

Springfield, Ohio, Aug 4—Special—The result of Saturday's primaries in this county ends the political career of ex-Speaker Keifer. The successful candidate was to name his delegates to Tuesday's congressional convention. Captain Bushnell carried the city by 810 and the county by 300 majority. Keifer did not carry a single ward.

THE JULIA BAKER MUTINEERS

Key West, Aug 4—Mate Walker of the Julia Baker, who has been charged with killing Captain Lewis, the dead master of that vessel, was to be arraigned today. One of his accomplices claimed he was in charge of running away with the vessel and disposing of the cargo. The testimony proved that the master was sick when the vessel sailed and that he was given a dose. On the sixth day he was not [illegible] and saw the captain fall from his chair to the cabin. He was picked up by the mate and steward and laid on a mattress on the cabin floor. The latter administered something to him, but in a short time he was dead. [illegible] The mate then took charge of the vessel, [illegible] reached the Bahama islands. She was [illegible] and landed at [illegible]. Arriving at the [illegible] the mate sold the deck load of lumber and then went to Bahamas [illegible] and sold some flour and bread. The vessel was then taken to an uninhabited island where she met a small schooner. The mate [illegible] and [illegible] arranged a plan. The interview [illegible] the [illegible] party. Mate Walker going with her. In five days having been able to sell only twelve barrels of flour. He gave the small schooner twenty barrels for her services and she left. The steward ran away by jumping on board over the Julia Baker's side. The latter came directly to this port where the balance of her cargo of flour was [illegible] at $5 a barrel. Walker was held in $2000 bonds for trial at the November term of court.

THE GLASGOW MURDERER LYNCHED

St. Louis, Aug 4—A special from Glasgow last night says that from 75 to 100 negroes went to the jail between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday morning and demanded the keys of the jailer and when they were refused by that official they broke the door of the jail was broken into by the mob and Harrison Mickey, then taken out and hanged to a tree outside of the town. Before being strung up Mickey was asked if he wished to pray or whether he desired to make any statement. He answered that he was not a praying man and asked whether they intended to hang him to do it quickly. He was then hoisted up and left to strangle to death. The affair was conducted very quietly and only a few persons outside the mob knew of it until the body of the negro was discovered hanging to the tree this morning. Shortly the man shot by Mickey is still living, and slightly improved.

THE DISGUSTING SHARON HILL DIVORCE CASE

Sudden Death of Prominent Citizens—The Panama Canal Pronounced a Stupendous Failure—News from the North

Big Fire at Seattle.

Seattle, Aug 4—[Special]—At 3 this morning fire was discovered in the rear of the Mint restaurant on Front street. The flames spread rapidly and before the firemen had got to work the Clayton block a newly erected building adjoining was also burning fiercely. This was an immense three story structure. It was almost entirely destroyed, but the fire got no further.

In a short time four streams were playing on the fire and after an hour's fight it was brought under control. The principal losses are as follows: Clay & Bros. stock and building $10,000, fully insured; R. R. Raphael & Bro. $1500 fully insured; Miss L. Shipman, artist, $600 no insurance; Mrs. M. Clark dressmaker $200; R. Roch, Murphy & Epler, attorneys, library and papers $1500; Washington Land Company $500; Washington Coal Mining Company $600; R. Mnuch civil engineer $1000; Hill & Bros., buildings $400; Smith & Blanchard saloon $300; Mint chop house $800; John McGee household furniture $600; Louis Steen household furniture $200; Carpenter business college, $300.

The fire originated from the range in the chop house.

Burglar Captured.

Seattle, Aug 4—[Special]—A burglar last night entered the store of Calkins & Reddish on Front street and was discovered there by Mr. Calkins one of the proprietors. A struggle ensued and the burglar was captured. He had a preliminary hearing this morning and was bound over on a charge of burglary.

THE PANAMA CANAL

Admiral Schufeldt Pronounces the Enterprise a Stupendous Failure

San Francisco, Aug 4—[Special]—Admiral Schufeldt, United States navy, just arrived from Panama, said to-day that he remained on the isthmus two weeks and carefully studied the work that has been done on the Panama canal. In speaking of the canal he said: As I understand it M. de Lesseps after a very hurried and imperfect study of the isthmus formed a company with a capital of $120,000,000 to dig a canal across the isthmus of Panama and promised the shareholders that it should be constructed for that amount. [illegible] and finished by January 1, 1888. He calculated the cost of excavation at 30 cents per cubic meter and of labor at 80 cents per [illegible] he estimated the amount of excavation at [illegible] cubic meters. How much of it was earth and how much rock he apparently did not know then nor do I think he absolutely know now.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES

The admiral then calls attention to the fact that only 6,000,000 of the 75,000,000 cubic meters contracted for have been excavated, while the estimates for the total excavations have been increased from 122,000,000 cubic meters to 160,000,000 and the wages have increased from 80 cents to $1 50 and $1 75 per day and contracts made for dredging are as high as $1 20 per cubic meter. He then says: It is stated that $150,000,000 has already been expended or one half of the capital, and $400,000,000 is asked for expenditures of the present year. Under these circumstances and without taking into consideration many difficult problems which present themselves from day to day in the progress of the work, not the least of which the control of that uncontrollable river the Chagres, it is very evident that neither the estimated time nor the estimated money will be adequate for the undertaking, and judging the future by the estimates of the past five times the estimated amount of money and at least twenty years time will be expended before we shall see even the beginning of the end.

HIS CONCLUSIONS

He concludes: First that the canal cannot possibly be built in the time specified nor for the amounts estimated; and that the confidence of capitalists will be exhausted before the work can be finished. In this connection I state again what I have written before that in my opinion no canal can be made across any part of the American isthmus without the national guarantees. Third that even granting the possibility of controlling the Chagres now and diverting its channel it is financially impossible to dig a through cut canal not only down to the sea level but thirty feet below it across the isthmus of Panama. While I believe a lock canal can be so constructed as to accommodate the commerce of the world and obviate the necessity of a canal at any other point, I am impressed with this the present company will exhaust itself in a very few years and that the time will then be opportune for any country to purchase the franchise with the advantage of all the labor already expended. Whether the United States is the main land of its and ultimately to exert control the destinies of the continent will it not assert its prerogative remains of course a question for the future.

CALIFORNIA

The Sharon Divorce Case

San Francisco, Aug 4—[Special]—As the Sharon case drags its weary length along it becomes a much complicated and unsavory scandal. Sharon's hired witnesses are now turned against him and on the opposing interest while Miss Hill's bosom friend is now engaged in the Sharon interest, and Neilson, Miss Hill's first lawyer, has jumped the case and is now howling against everybody. All of these factors in the case are now telling how they lied at first and of the influences which effected them. It is a pity that some scheme cannot be devised to consign the whole crew, plaintiff, defendant, lawyers, friends paid witnesses and attorneys to the penitentiary for life. It is the general opinion that Miss Hill has not proved the alleged marriage and that the case will be dismissed.

In the Sharon case to-day Mrs. C. H. Stahr testified for plaintiff that she heard Nellie Brackett say she (Brackett) could get $75,000 if she would keep out of the trial and go east. Miss Brackett was called and denied having stated anything of the kind. George H. Goddard swore that he heard Miss Brackett so express herself. Miss Hill plaintiff was recalled and swore that Miss Brackett told her that she had received $3,000 from General Barnes and was promised $10,000 more at the end of the trial. Miss Hill further stated that Miss Brackett told her her father had deposited the $3000 in the Hibernian bank. Judge Sullivan then asked that the court send to the Hibernian bank to verify this statement and the court so ordered.

Wedded

San Francisco, Aug 4—Fred Sharon son of ex-Senator Sharon and Mrs. Louise Breckenridge, daughter of Lloyd Tevis and the divorced wife of H. C. Breckenridge were married last night at Mr. Tevis' residence in this city. Only four or five persons were present at the ceremony and an effort was made to keep the matter secret but it failed. The affair has a special interest from the fact that the former husband of Mrs. Breckenridge, who is a son of the late [illegible] C. Breckenridge has threatened to kill Sharon on sight.

Personal

[Special]—Judge O. N. Denny will sail for China next Thursday. He goes on private business in a way connected with his former relations and will return in three months. Mrs. Denny will accompany him.

Captain B. B. Tuttle arrived last night from the east with Mrs. Tuttle and will sail for Portland next Saturday.

Joseph Niles of Portland is in the city, and will remain for several months.

A Journalist Drops Dead

Los Angeles, Aug 4—Robert S. Lynch the local editor and business manager of the Herald of this city, fell dead in Santa Monica canyon last night. He was a native of Pennsylvania, about 47 years of age. He was associated with his brother, Joseph D. Lynch, in the San Diego World and came to Los Angeles in 1877. He was a man of many admirable traits and highly respected. His sudden death shocked the community and the loss is deeply deplored. The body was brought to the city this morning, and the funeral will take place to-morrow.

Mr Barrett was enthusiastically received. The engagement promises to be the most brilliant, artistically and financially, ever recorded in the history of Denver.

O'DONNELL'S LEPERS

The Health Officers in Arms Against the Proposed Exhibition

Washington, Aug 4—[Special]—The health authorities and the police were to-day on the lookout for Dr. C. C. O'Donnell, the anti-Chinese agitator of San Francisco and his two exhibition Chinese lepers. Dr. O'Donnell arrived in Baltimore last evening. When asked by a reporter where the lepers were he said they were on their way from New York to this city and they would arrive here to-day. They are traveling in a cattle car wrapped in blankets with a sorrel horse he said.

"What is the horse for?" asked the reporter.

"Well I only use it as a blind," said the doctor. "I tell the railroad people the lepers are merely tending the horse so as not to create any suspicion about their condition."

He said he failed to get permission to exhibit the lepers in Baltimore. He would come to this city to take the lepers out of their car and place them on the capital steps.

Mayor Dye this morning received a telephone message from Baltimore that the lepers were coming to this city. He telegraphed to Marshal Gray of that city for specific information as to the train on which they would come. "We have heard nothing further," he said to a reporter at 1 o'clock. "I have had policemen stationed at each depot instructed to prevent the lepers from landing, and to arrest them."

SUSTAINED BY THE LAW

"Do you think you can prevent O'Donnell from bringing the lepers into the city?" asked the reporter.

"I have no doubt of that. We have the power under the law," said the mayor. "At least we can arrest him and let the court decide it."

The mayor here referred to the act of December 1, 1830 imposing a penalty of not more than $500 or less than $50 on any person bringing in the city any indigent, afflicted or diseased person liable to become a charge upon the community. The law provides also for fining the transportation company that lands such persons in the district. He referred also to a section of the health ordinance imposing a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100 on any person who willfully exposed in public any person afflicted with a contagious or infectious disease. "I have notified the superintendents of the railroad companies," said Mayor Dye, "that they will be prosecuted if they land these lepers here. There is no doubt as to the law. All of the doctors to whom I have talked agree that leprosy is a contagious disease."

ACCIDENTS

THE WASHINGTON HOTEL DISASTER

Washington, August 4—Mrs Belding wife of the proprietor of the hotel was rescued alive at 11 30 o'clock after having been imprisoned four hours. She was on the first floor of the back building and was caught in a narrow space formed by a part of the second floor resting in a slanting position against the side wall. After the firemen and volunteers had worked two hours digging down into the debris from the surface a force of firemen under Captain Drown started from the front of the building against the back of which timbers and bricks had partly lodged, and hearing groans worked their way back by removing the timbers and supporting others. They finally got near enough to see Mrs. Belding and to talk with her and eventually to hand her some water and whisky. She was not crushed but held down by her clothes and penned in by fallen timbers. Jacks were brought and the weight held in while saws and axes were used to cut a way to her. At last the rescuers got close enough to cut her clothing loose when they were enabled to extricate her. She was apparently not severely injured but very much exhausted, and fainted as she was carried out.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory

There are about 150 men at work on the Snoqualmie road.

The hay crop about Whatcom is being harvested and shows a good yield.

An Olympia exchange says: The fruit crop is the largest ever known in this vicinity.

David Hume, a fisherman at Tacoma, caught a salmon on Thursday weighing seventy five pounds.

Spokane Falls paper: The hot sultry summer weather of the past two weeks has caused a good deal of sickness in the city but very little of a really serious nature has been reported.

The hops on the Snoqualmie hop ranch are in fine condition. This ranch will produce a crop of over 1000 tons. It contains 250 acres planted in hops. There are at present ninety men employed on the ranch. The hops in White river valley are just coming up.

Spokane Falls Chronicle: The heavy rains during the past two weeks have played havoc in the hay fields. A great many farmers have been caught with their crop newly cut and the curing process has been seriously hindered and much of the hay injured.

The Cheney Sentinel reports that Edward Butler, a farmer living three miles from town, met with a frightful accident on Thursday while raking hay. Some part of the harness became detached and the horses became frightened and started to run. Mr. Butler seeing no other alternative jumped clear from the rake alighting with his whole weight on his right foot. He was minus the horrible injury; the ankle bone protruding through the skin, and both and extending about three inches into the ground.

What[illegible] Reveille: An Indian named Charley Seeattian went fishing early Wednesday morning and the rough sea upset his canoe off Point Frances. He must have remained in the water hanging to his canoe for eight or ten hours before being sighted by Messrs. Gilmar and Shank of Bellingham who thinking the object was a whale in the distance examined it more closely with a glass and discovered it to be a man. They put out in a small boat and succeeded in reaching the man while yet alive but he died from exhaustion before reaching the shore. His family live on the beach near New Whatcom.

The Olympia Tree [illegible] in speaking of the death of Mrs. Catherine Wood who departed this life in that city on July [illegible] says: Mrs. Catharine Wood was a relic of the late Isaac Wood and died at the advanced age of 87 years. Her death was quite sudden although she had been confined to her room for a long time. She was well as usual until a short time before death ensued, when she complained of being weary and lay down and in a few hours breathed her last. Mrs. Wood was a native of New York city but lived for a number of years in Wisconsin and with her husband and children came to this territory in 1853 where she has since remained. Of her eight children only four are now living—J. R. Wood of this city, Mrs. Mary McMullen, wife of the late ex-Governor McMullen of Virginia, Mrs. Kate Ewart of Tacoma and Isaac Wood of Vashon island. The late John Wood, Mrs. Frank Hicks, Rollin R. and Alex Wood were her children and are now dead. Mrs. Wood was an estimable and kind old lady and her death leaves a place in the ranks of the first settlers of the territory that all will miss.

J. T. Meglar's farm in Sandridge, Union was the scene of a waterspout on Saturday. The water came down the canyon at the back of the house in torrents and, flooding the house, meadow and garden caused considerable damage. Haycocks were carried bodily several rods, and only stopped by coming in contact with the fences. A number of large rocks and a large quantity of gravel were accordingly distributed among the [illegible], cabbages, turnips and potatoes. Damage about $350.

Interesting Experiment.

We hope the Star will continue to exult throughout the whole campaign. Its advocacy of the election of Cleveland after all it has said against him would be a burlesque upon honest journalism.—San Jose Express.

THE CLEVELAND SCANDAL.

The Rev. George H. Ball of Buffalo Reiterates His Original Charge.

CONFIRMED BY REV. S. S. MITCHELL

The Editor of the "Telegraph" Serene and Confident—Invites Mr. Cleveland to Sue for Libel

Buffalo, N. Y., July 25—[Editor of the Chicago Tribune]—I find a private letter of mine made public in your columns relating to Mr. Grover Cleveland. How it came to be published I do not know neither do I particularly care. [The letter was copied from the San Francisco Chronicle.—Ed. Tribune.] The sole object in writing it was to put the Advance on its guard and draw its attention to Mr. Cleveland's immoralities. I had carefully investigated the case, and found the evidence of his guilt overwhelming. He was being urged upon the confidence of good people on the plea of exceptional purity and religious papers were being misled and were misleading others. I wished them to consider the case and discuss the relation of unchastity to civil promotions. The people need instruction on this point. Politicians are inclined to treat it lightly and our youth are being swept away from the path of virtue by their example. It seems to me that religious journals have a special duty to do in the matter.

The publication of my letter is bringing me a flood of inquiries. It consumes my time and strength to answer them and I want relief. The Telegraph in this city has published the case quite fully, and I believe truthfully and without exaggeration. The editor of that paper is a Christian gentleman who would not knowingly publish an untruth. He took great pains to ascertain the facts before disclosing anything. That paper can be had singly or by the quantity. If people will send for it instead of writing to me I shall be greatly obliged.

The case is now in the political arena, yet it is primarily a moral one. Every good man and pure woman is interested to have a bachelor of bad habits kept out of our national mansion. Mormonism is odious but free love far more odious. Our president should be personally pure as well as politically sound. Very truly, GEORGE H. BALL,
Pastor Hudson street Baptist church, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE TELEGRAPH ARTICLE WAS PREPARED BY A CLERGYMAN AND ANOTHER CLERGYMAN HAS REASON TO KNOW IT IS TRUE

Buffalo, N. Y., July 21—Editor of the Tribune:—It seems to me that a leading question of this campaign ought to be: Do the American people want a confirmed libertine for their president?

THE [illegible] OF THE [illegible] TELEGRAPH QUITE [illegible] ABOUT [illegible] LIBEL SUITS.

[illegible] Special—It was stated [illegible] that suit had been brought by Governor [illegible] against the Evening Telegraph for criminal libel [illegible] the report [illegible] under the heading "The Threat of a Libel Suit," says: "Numerous inquiries [illegible] the editor of the Telegraph about the [illegible] of his arrest for libel on account of the Cleveland exposure. In reply we have to say: The editor of the Telegraph has positive information that he is to be arrested for libel. He has positive information that he will not be arrested. He knows nothing about it and gives himself no concern about the matter. He feels prepared to meet the issue in any shape it may take."

A DOSE FOR THE REFORMERS AND THE INDEPENDENT FELLOWS IN [illegible]

Philadelphia Press: The [illegible] publication of the [illegible] affecting Governor Cleveland is of a character compels reference to an unpleasant theme. The story was early passed in our columns. It has since been corroborated by the [illegible] testimony of a Buffalo minister of the gospel. The alleged facts are printed in a score of [illegible] papers and in at least one newspaper in Buffalo [illegible] friendly to Governor Cleveland these serious charges are referred to without a word of denial.

But we [illegible] no necessity for publishing them in the Press. It is not our habit or wish to bandy charges of personal corruption and deprave the level of political life by placing before the public these circumstantial allegations of the [illegible] a man whose defeat is demanded for public reasons. We leave Governor Cleveland's personal [illegible] character to those who are responsible for his [illegible] [illegible] independents who turn from the associates and friends of Lincoln and Garfield to a man whose personal acts and associates cannot be so much as named or discussed in a newspaper passing into one of the hands of families and anxious each day [illegible] mirror the world's wide news that [illegible] receive more every mention or needless publicity. We leave the discussion of this unfortunate subject [illegible] with the memory of men now in active life [illegible] with a Presidential candidate. Let the religious papers who profess to find in Mr. Blaine [illegible] must they [illegible] conscientiously support reconcile with their professions [illegible] morality the life of the candidate of their choice.

Our columns are closed to these weapons of political warfare and sharing no responsibility for Governor Cleveland we feel under no necessity of sharing any exposure others may deem necessary. We pass neither upon the truth nor the falsity of those charges. We do not repeat them and we shall continue to present to the public reasons which must satisfy every candid and patriotic citizen that the first duty of an American will be to cast his vote next November for James G. Blaine.

A FUNNY DEFENSE (?)—GIVING THE CASE AWAY

Buffalo, N. Y., July 23—Editor Buffalo Daily Times:—I was greatly pleased with your brave and manly editorial in yesterday's Times when you as a political opponent of Governor Cleveland gave him justice and defended him when the Cleveland organs said nothing and left the public to infer that there might be truth in the grave charges made against the governor. Your attitude has given the friends of Cleveland much satisfaction and in this I heartily share for I have known Cleveland since he was a young struggling lawyer. I have never in all these years had any reason to change my opinion of him which is that he is a brave large hearted man in the fullest sense of the word. That such a man should not be defended by his own organs is a burning shame. Of course I see papers affect not to notice the attacks, but when such journals as the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Detroit Journal and other leading newspapers print the story and defend the governor it does seem as if the inhibition or wisdom on the part of the Buffalo Cleveland papers is the result of bigoted narrow mindedness.

I desire to say further if you will permit me that if the true facts of this unfortunate affair became known it would be found that Cleveland had acted more manly than hundreds of men would have done under the circumstances. The original cause of the trouble is something that happens to thousands of people but the subsequent events appear to be the matter of most criticism. As an old friend of Cleveland I know that he treated the woman in the case with great kindness and she hounded him for money. He had to borrow all or nearly all of the $600 with which he [illegible] bought peace after the woman's habits and [illegible] [illegible] had made life almost unbearable [illegible] that she took to drink and frequently threatened Cleveland's life. It is true that she was temporarily sent to an asylum but it was when she was on the verge of the tremens and was so likely to do herself injury as she threatened to hurt others. Does any one suppose that a sane man and a lawyer would send a woman—whom he might want to have put out of the way—to an asylum without a commitment or warrant of law knowing full well that she would be quickly liberated? I never did think so.

Keep on Mr. Editor in your manly course and you will justly merit and win the respect and esteem of everybody. I hope the Cleveland organs here will come to their senses and defend the governor as papers all over the Union are doing. The public is watching to see them defend Cleveland.
AN OLD RESIDENT

Balzac's First Book

When Balzac was at the beginning of his career and known only to the few who had chanced upon his brilliant thefts in the Paris newspapers it so happened that one of these sparkling effusions fell in the way of a Paris bookseller and was published. The bookseller had or thought he had from long experience a shrewd idea of what would take with the Parisian public. He folded the paper and laid it down with an air of decision saying as he did so:

"I will offer that fellow 3000 francs for a novel. I may have to pay more but I'll try 3000 to start with."

Next morning the bookseller started out to find Balzac. His journey took him into an obscure street in one of the meanest and poorest parts of the city. As he turned into this dingy thoroughfare he said to himself as he looked about:

"Ah! I see he must be a poor devil; I will offer him 2000 francs—no more."

Somewhat wearily the bookseller at length found the house. It was high, dingy and not too clean.

"O! I shall say 1500," was his resolve as he crossed the threshold.

M. Balzac lived on the fourth floor and his visitor climbed the rickety stairs.

At all 1000 francs not a sou more was his mental determination. But when he stepped into the shabby room and saw a young man dipping a penny roll into a glass of water 300 francs just one-tenth the sum first intended was the offer that sprang to his lips, and for this amount he received the manuscript of what was afterwards considered a masterpiece.

Messrs. D. & J. W. Colton of Winchester, Ind., happened last spring to get some of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. After selling a few bottles the demand became so great for it that their stock was soon exhausted. They state that it has produced the best effect wherever used and is very popular among the people.

Andrew Downing of Cranburgh township, Venango county, gave his child one teaspoonful of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and she passed 177 worms. Next morning, on repetition of the dose, she passed 113 more.

Jonathan Houghman, of West Union, Park county, Iowa, writes that he is unable to supply the demand as the people in his neighborhood say after a trial of the others that none is equal to Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 5, 1884.

THE POLITICAL SUPERIOR BEING.

The effort to organize an "independent" campaign in certain eastern states in behalf of Cleveland and Hendricks is already very accurately measured. It will control in New York probably 10,000 to 20,000 votes, which hitherto have gone with the republicans in presidential contests. Were it not possible for the republicans to draw from the democratic party a force to balance this loss there could be little hope of their winning New York; and with the loss of that state republican defeat would be a probable thing. But there is the strongest of reasons for the belief that for every man of the "better class" who goes over from the republican to the democratic party three democratic voters will come to the republican candidates. It is, indeed, already demonstrated that the "bolt" of the democratic working classes is much larger than that organized by the perfumed and aristocratic "better element," who call themselves "independent republicans."

In their assumption that they are a "better element" these gentlemen do not appear to be sufficiently on their guard against the "leaven of the Pharisees;" and moreover they commit a political mistake. In most cases their pretensions of superiority are based on wealth and on the advantages it gives them. Because they have leisure, can boast of gentility and culture, and are not obliged to soil their hands with labor, they take a position above and outside the world, to criticise it. Their fellow men, whom they look upon as they move upon the lower planes, are very common clay, lacking of course that nice ethical perception, that sense of honor, which distinguishes the man of "culture" and "conscience." Some of our independent brethren go so far as to declare that the riff-raff and rabble have gotten control of the republican party, and it is therefore time for the better element to leave it. These gentlemen make something too much of an outward respectability based on fine linen, social position and bank account. If conscience, of which they talk very much, dwells and abides chiefly with them, if they are the depositaries of the moral and civic virtues, which must be defended against the masses of the people whom this "better element" denominates the "dangerous classes"—the prospects of the country, it must be admitted, are rather dark. Well may it be feared that so little leaven cannot leaven so great a mass—particularly if the leaven be of that quality of which men are charged to beware. And thus the superior being, who devoutly renders thanks that he is not as other men are, seems to be acting according to the necessary law of his sect when he declares his preference for Cleveland over Blaine, upon "moral grounds."

The assumption of superior intelligence and conscience is as great a political as a moral mistake. The appearance of these truly good men in the democratic party, with their advice officiously tendered, and their pretensions to the higher moral and political virtues superciliously displayed, is the signal for withdrawal from that party of a large number of people who cannot feel quite at home in such superior company. To be made a fit abiding place for the superior being who proposes to come into it, the democratic party must be purged and purified. For the masses of its voters, like those of the republican party, belong to the "dangerous classes," over whom the truly good minority or remnant must hold a strong check. Naturally this makes the common democratic voter restive and uncomfortable. The uninvited guest assumes to be master of the house, and puts on so many airs that there is no living with him. This is the secret of no small part of the remarkable secession of the working classes of the country from the democratic household. The case resembles that of the Irish sailor who on reaching port hired a donkey for a ride into the country. The animal, striking at the flies, caught his hind [illegible] the stirrup. "How now, Dobbin," said [illegible] are going to get on I will get off, for [illegible] were I'll not ride double with yez!"

[illegible] it is not the mass of the people whom government by the people has most reason to fear. It would seem to be those who are most unfaithful to the idea of government by the people, including on the one hand those who distrust the masses and underrate their intelligence and virtue, and on the other the wealthy criminal classes who advocate the doctrine of government by the minority as a means of protecting themselves and plundering the people while they hold them in subjection.

HOME INDUSTRY.

It is not only very important but really necessary that this city, and all the country tributary to it, should be, so far as possible, self-sustaining. A great many people are here not to make great fortunes and so become capitalists, but to make a living, and they depend upon their daily labor for their daily bread. This class, which constitutes the majority in all communities, is one which makes the large possessions and business of the more favored profitable. Without employment they cannot subsist. No community can be happy or prosperous where they are unemployed. The self-preservation which is the first law of communities as well as of individuals, requires that every member should stand by each other and do everything possible to furnish employment for capital and labor. The home industry and the home trade should be supported because they furnish the employment which creates the demand and yields the revenue for capital. Every member supplies something which every other member lacks, and when this mutual relationship is sustained there is prosperity and usually progress.

There are abundant opportunities here, if they were all improved, for the support of all our people and for all that should be invited to join us. An enlightened public spirit will suggest, doubtless, more than can be said in such an article as this concerning the various methods by which the different interests and classes in this community can be mutually helpful to each other. Every intelligent person probably realizes the fact that the creation of new industries, or the support and enlargement of those already existing, everything that furnishes employment for labor, should be encouraged and fostered. If a shop is started here for the manufacture of matches, for example, the merchant and the consumer will promote their own interests by giving the preference, other things being equal, to its product over that of distant or foreign manufacture. We have large and fine furniture factories here which consume the lumber and iron of the country and furnish employment to labor. And the preference should be given to their products by all our citizens. It is with regret that we have recently learned that the directors of a school in this vicinity have sent the money of the taxpayers of the community abroad for the purchase of desks for their school house. The iron at Oswego and the lumber of the Willamette valley are at hand awaiting the public-spirited action of those demanding furniture to be converted by home industry into desks and chairs for the school house and all manner of articles for the home. Everything is here, except a little varnish, that is required for the manufacture of furniture, and there are people who need employment. We might pursue the subject further by the use of other illustrations, but it is not necessary. The most that is required is public spirit, and the taking home to the conscience and the prudence of our people of the old truth that "no man liveth unto himself," and that no man can live unto himself without living an essentially narrow and mean life and bringing, so far as his influence goes, a blight upon the community. We must be mutually self-helpful in order to get the most out of life for ourselves.

Mr. Beecher says he is unable to support Blaine because there are "grave scandals connected with his name." He therefore supports Cleveland in the interest of "moral reform."

LARGE OR SMALL FARMS.

In the third volume of the tenth census there is a valuable special report on cereal production, by Professor W. H. Brewer of Yale college in which he says that "it has thus far been the experience of the world that the agricultural production of a district is larger and more certain if the farms are of moderate size than if large, and also is more where the farms produce some considerable variety of product than of a district where the farms are large, producing but one or two kinds of products." Abundant reasons might be given why it is undoubtedly better, also, in a political and social point of view "that as large a proportion as possible of farm laborers should be independent farmers, conducting their own business, even if it be in a humble way, and educating their children into their vocation, than if the number of men were employed on larger farms as employes, even though in that case better machinery might be used and a better organized system of labor might be practiced." The reasons are obvious. No other place is so favorable for the education of the young as the moderate-sized farm. Here the child has a greater variety of object-teaching than can possibly occur in any other common form of home life, and in no other vocation can the child be so well trained to habits of industry without detriment to health or intelligence. The large proportion of men in this country who have risen from the farm to eminence in the various walks of life is the natural result of the influence of this vocation on the intellectual development of people who belong to a naturally intelligent stock. The ownership of real estate, particularly of their own homes, makes people conservative. For the suppression of the warlike impulse, it is best that as large a proportion as possible of the population should be at work for themselves, rather than for hire. A study of the tables furnished with this report, Professor Brewer says, "will show that the total agricultural production is increased by the subdivision into smaller farms, each managed by its owner." And he concludes that "the agricultural and political welfare of our country is intimately related to if not absolutely bound up in, the ownership and management of those farms which range in size from 80 to 320 acres—that is from an eighth to a half section."

While this is all true, there is, of course, a limit beyond which it is not profitable in a pecuniary, nor desirable in a political or social point of view to reduce the size of farms. Arthur Young of England, who was engaged in practical husbandry from 1779 till his death, in 1820, who corresponded with Washington on agriculture, and traveled over Great Britain, Ireland, France, Spain and Italy as an agricultural observer, and was perhaps the most eminent writer on the subject that ever lived, has forcibly described the inability of small farmers to make progress and improvement in their business in these words: "Let me ask of the advocates of small farms where the little farmer is to be found who will cover his farm with marl at the rate of 100 to 150 tons per acre; who will drain all his land at the expense of two or three pounds sterling per acre; who will pay a heavy price for the manure of town and convey it thirty miles by land carriage; who will flood his meadows at the expense of five pounds per acre; who, to improve the breed of sheep, will give 100 guineas for the use of a single ram for a single season; who will give twenty-five guineas per cow for being covered by a fine bull; who will send across the kingdom to distant provinces for new implements, and for men to use them; who employ and pay men for residing in provinces where practices are formed which they want to introduce on their farms. At the very mention of such exertions, common in England, what mind can be so perversely framed as to imagine for a single moment that such things, such advantages are to be effected or enjoyed by little farmers? Deduct from agriculture all the practices which have made it flourishing in this island and you have left precisely the management of small farms."

It was a great benefit, one of the benefits of the revolution, when in France the great estates were broken up by the abolishment of feudal and manorial rights, but the subdivision of the land among the peasant farmers has been carried much too far for profitable and ennobling agriculture. In 1860 the distribution of holdings in France was as follows: 50,000 proprietors holding an average of 737 acres; 500,000 proprietors holding an average of seventy-four acres; 5,000,000 proprietors holding an average of seven acres. The subdivision is still going on, leading to an entanglement and division of estates which have created alarm among the most strenuous advocates of the system of small farms. Under this system France is unable to supply her population with breadstuffs, though the soil and climate are superior, and with the addition of commercial fertilizers and improvements in modern husbandry, she might produce more than enough. In Holland a similar system prevails. The farms are too small to afford much more than a bare subsistence for their occupants, and the savings are so small that progress is impossible.

Professor Brewer has doubtless struck the happy mean between large and small farms in fixing the range from 80 to 320 acres. And the limit should be chosen according to the circumstances of the farmer. If he proposes to do his own work the smaller limit will be the most desirable, but if he depends upon hired labor, in whole or in part, he will require more land for profitable cultivation. The most general prosperity and comfort will be found in communities where the farms are large enough to afford a good living for the owner, and at the same time enable him to make accumulations from year to year which will permit him to introduce improvements in machinery and stock and to deposit something in the savings bank. "A little farm well tilled" is a very desirable possession, but the farm should not be so small that it will only afford the well filled house the means of subsistence. On the other hand, the farm should not be so large that it cannot all be brought under profitable cultivation. If farming is undertaken as an occupation for its owner rather than as a business for the capitalist, it should be as nearly as possible a continuous occupation, so diversified as to furnish, if not constant employment the year round, at least opportunities of more or less engrossing interest throughout the seasons. In every sphere of life a loafer is a miserable being, but he nowhere has a duller and more miserable time than on a farm, and nowhere more surely deteriorates physically, mentally and morally.

The house of Harpers & Brothers is a great publishing establishment conducted to make money. Of this fact no one has reason to complain. The house wanted to publish Blaine's book, but didn't get it, and as there is human nature even in great publishing houses, one may do no great violence to fact by entertaining the supposition that, had kind and profitable relations with Blaine been secured by Harper & Brothers through acceptance by him of their offer to publish his book, the journal of civilization would have seen its political duty for this campaign in a very different light from what it now does. It is only truth to say that a more mercenary publication than Harper's Weekly has never been known. In early days it bitterly opposed the republican party, and was one of the most servile devotees of the democratic slave power. It then catered to southern and democratic patrons; but the war cut off its southern business, and to get northern readers it was forced to change. So it changed right about, and till now has steadily supported the republican party. Now again, however, the hope of obtaining southern and democratic support, and so enlarging its constituency, it suddenly swings back to the democratic party, which, till two months ago, it declared wholly unworthy the confidence of any patriotic citizen. Its proprietors, in the effort to make up the loss of the multitude of republican readers who have rejected the paper, are now advertising it vigorously in democratic organs in all parts of the country, and especially in the southern states.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The popular protest in England against the house of lords, growing out of the refusal of the lords to allow extension of the right of suffrage is construed in many quarters as a threat against the existence of that house as a member of the legislative body of the empire. Of course any popular effort in that direction would be a revolutionary act; but even this was almost distinctly hinted at as possible in a recent speech by Gladstone himself.

Though the house of lords is a permanent body, great changes in the composition of it take place from time to time through changes in the peerage. The following statement appeared in 1875: Of 217 peerages created since the 1st of January, 1830, only 135 yet remain upon the rolls. The number of peers in 1830 was 393; the continual additions by successive prime ministers have raised it to 480. Of the peerages created in the Plantagenet reigns only four now survive; of the Tudor reigns, 11; of the Stuart reigns, 46; of George I. and II., 26; of George III., 131; of George IV., 42; of William IV., 41; and of Victoria, 89. When it is borne in mind that more than 1000 peerages were created in the reign of George III., and that the honor can only be extinguished by death, and not by resignation, the fact that so few as 130 now remain, is a remarkable one.

It has been decided by the lords that a peerage is inalienable. "No peer of this realm can drown or extinguish his honor, neither by surrender, grant, fine nor any other conveyance to the king, but it descends to his descendants." So careful have the lords been to guard their joint and common privileges and sources of power.

The democratic organs continue to berate John A. Logan for the authorship of the unjust and cruel "black laws" of Illinois. Logan is, indeed, open to censure for this conduct at that time, but it would seem that our democratic brethren are in danger of working the charge too vigorously for the good of their party. Logan then was a democrat; he had his entire party with him and the black laws were passed as party measures. Logan soon after repented, and ever since has been doing works meet for repentance. The old party that he left has not. Logan would appear to be ahead on this particular matter.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

ITS CLAIM UPON POPULAR INTEREST.

Ambitious to Become a State—A Talk with Governor Squire.

Watson C. Squire, the recently appointed governor of Washington territory, has already entered upon the most important and engrossing duty of his office, which is to attract favorable attention to the claims of the territory upon popular interest. In an interview with a New York Tribune reporter a few days ago he said: "I find that the people of the east have not, as a rule, had much time to investigate the claims of Washington territory for admission to the Union. Washington territory is the extreme northwest portion of the United States, Alaska, of course, being excepted. It is separated in part from Oregon on the south by the Columbia river, which is seven miles wide at its mouth. The territory is divided into an eastern and a western part by the Cascade range of mountains. The eastern portion is largely open plains, and prairie land admirably adapted to grazing and the culture of wheat. The average yield of wheat is thirty-five bushels to the acre. The total population is already enormous. Wheat is shipped to Liverpool by the way of Portland, and brings a larger price in Portland than it does in Chicago, by reason of the trans-oceanic shipping facilities. Cattle are driven to the eastern states and west over the Cascade mountains for the use of the people in the lumber districts on the sound. The interior is beautifully diversified by the rich valleys of Yakima, Kittitas and Klickitat, upon the fertile lands of which great crops of wheat can be raised; acres of small fruit profitably grown, and herds of cattle grazed. The western portion of the territory is rich in fir, cedar, ash and maple and other woods, forming the largest and finest body of timber on the globe. The fir trees reach a height of 250 feet, and are used by the ship builders there and elsewhere. The Columbia river and Gray's harbor water the southwestern part of the territory. Gray's harbor is deep and spacious, the water measuring twenty-two feet on the bar at low tide. Puget sound is a magnificent body of water, having a shore line of 1797 miles indented with bays and inlets, all of which have deep water. The Olympic mountain range, rising to a height of about 7500 feet, between Puget sound and the ocean, defends it from gales and makes the waters of the Sound calm. A number of large rivers flow into Puget sound, and on the shores of the sound are sawmills, some of which turn out 200,000 feet of lumber in a single day. In addition to this wealth of timber, there are large deposits of bituminous, semi-bituminous, and, higher up the mountains, anthracite coal. Iron ore of a good quality lies in the mountains. The agricultural characteristic here is an adaptation to root crops of all kinds. Wheat does not do so well on the coast. The river bottom lands produce fine hay. The crops are simply enormous. Three and one half to four tons an acre is a frequent production. I have raised crops of that size on my own farm. The tidal lands when reclaimed by dikes produce oats of the finest quality in marvelous abundance.

AREA AND POPULATION.

"The area of Washington territory is about 69,000 square miles; its people and the people of Idaho have passed on the question of transferring 11,000 square miles from the latter territory to Washington territory, which will make an aggregate of 80,000 square miles, or about twice the area of Ohio. There are in Washington territory twelve strong posts of the Grand Army of the Republic. The people are remarkably patriotic, notwithstanding the contiguity of British Columbia.

"The climate is agreeable and mild. Thirty-eight degrees above zero is the average for the winters. In summer 68°; in autumn 53°; in spring 52°. There was no frost last winter till February. Men can work in the open air more days yearly than in any other part of the continent. The finest of fruits are raised, and you can have fresh vegetables from your garden nearly all winter."

"Are the churches pretty well and evenly represented?"

"O yes. At Seattle the Catholics have a large and well equipped hospital, and are erecting a convent; the Episcopalians are erecting one there, and Bishop Paddock is building a school in Tacoma. The Methodists are establishing a literary institution at Olympia; Walla Walla has Whitman's college. There are several Indian reservations. The Indians are inoffensive and frequently industrious. They may be seen trading on the streets in their bright costumes. The western part of the territory is a great hop country and the Indians are very useful as hop pickers; thousands of them come from all directions for that purpose. They seldom get liquor, since the law punishes by a heavy penalty every person who gives or sells liquor to an Indian. They address the whites in a language called Chinook. It was invented by the Jesuits and is a common language, as the Latin was to the wise men of all nations in mediæval Europe. The important thing for the future of Washington territory is the completion of railroad communication between the western and eastern sections. There is a wagon road building through the Cascade mountains, by way of Snoqualmie pass. It is said that the Northern Pacific Company will build through Stampede pass, a few miles further south. When this connection is formed it will develop valuable mining and timber interests, and give the quickest transit for wheat and coal to the coast, and for supplies from the coast for the people of the interior.

POLITICAL FEATURES.

"The preponderance of political strength has always been on the side of the republicans, and from the class of immigrants now coming to us I should judge that the territory is likely to remain republican. The delegates to Chicago voted for Blaine on all the ballots. Our voting population is very large in proportion to the number of people. There are few maiden ladies there, and it is a good place for them to go. Fifty unmarried school teachers went out there not long ago, and they all found husbands but one. The people have approved a constitution and have applied for admission to the union. The application has been favorably regarded and it is expected that the next congress will admit the territory as a state. Washington territory has a larger population than Nevada or Delaware. The laws of the territory encourage voting by women. The experiment is being tried this year for the first time."

"Do the women exhibit an interest in affairs?"

"They manifest great interest in [illegible]. They are also required to serve as jurors, and much interest has attended the experiment in that direction. Chief Justice Roger S. Greene has insisted upon enforcing the laws on this point. The female jurors are selected from the best classes, and, so far as has been seen, the experiment of making up juries from both sexes works well and is attended with [illegible]. In the city of Seattle [illegible] of the [illegible] votes cast in a late election were the votes of women."

FACTS IN THE NEW GOVERNOR'S LIFE.

Governor Squire was appointed to his present position on July 2 of this year, and the appointment was confirmed by the senate two days later. He was graduated from the Wesleyan university, Middletown, Connecticut, in 1859, and has been a trustee of that institution for ten years. Early in the war he was captain of the Ohio sharpshooters. Later he was promoted and made judge advocate of the district of Tennessee. He read law with Judge Ranney of Cleveland, Ohio, and was admitted to practice by the supreme court in 1862. After the war he was connected with the Remington Arms Company at Ilion, N. Y., and married a daughter of the senior member of that company. He has been a member of the republican committee of New York for a number of years. In 1879 he withdrew from the Remington company, disposed of his interest, and went to Washington territory. He has been there about ten months of every year since.

A Microscope Pedler's Trick.

Pittsburg, Pa., Commercial, July 25.

An Allegheny physician, having his suspicions aroused that there was some trick about the living things found in the water on the south side when examined under a microscope, found that a pedler of microscopes had led to all the trouble. The attention of Dr. [illegible] of Allegheny was called to the matter. Dr. [illegible] possesses one of the finest microscopes in the country, and is an expert in all microscopical matters. He examined one of the pedler's plates, and found that the "wrigglers" were what are known as "corn-paste lizards." These creatures, invisible to the naked eye, are generated by sour paste. The paste can be dried and kept for years. A drop of water will dissolve it and reanimate the thousands of lizards that it contains. The pedler was hunted up and forced to divulge his secret. He had in his vest pocket a small bottle filled with sour paste in liquid form. On entering an office he would offer to show the impurities in a drop of water. The drop would be brought to him on his plate glass. In the most natural manner possible he would draw his toothpick, which was sticking in the invisible bottle, and spread the water over the surface of the glass. Just enough of the sour paste adhered to the toothpick and was deposited on the glass to carry a number of the lizards with it. The glass, so prepared, would be placed under the magnifier and the water would be found alive with transparent lizards that seemed never tired of darting back and forth under the glass. Dr. [illegible] exposed the trick to a number of friends last evening, after having successfully made them believe that it was the water alone that they were examining.

CITY.

Illegal Whisky Selling.—Obed Franklin, who was arrested for selling liquor without a license, had his trial in the police court yesterday. William [illegible], city dog-catcher, testified that he and two or three others bought whisky of Franklin and drank it at his bar. Policeman Collins was so situated that he also saw Franklin take a demijohn from behind the counter and pour out what seemed to be whisky for these men to drink. This testimony was corroborated by two other witnesses. Franklin swore he did not sell any whisky. He gave these men, he said, soda and sarsaparilla, and nothing else. On cross-examination he contradicted himself continually, and finally would not swear positively to anything. He wriggled about nervously in his seat, and his hands, despite his most earnest efforts, trembled and shook as though stricken by palsy. Sam Hervey, who gave his business as that of a waiter and a cook, but who is better known as a hanger on about saloons and a frequent witness for the defense in such cases as usually come up in the police courts, was called to the stand. He did not know whether any liquor had been sold by Franklin to any one on the 21st of July or not. On cross-examination it was drawn from the witness that he had worked for Franklin and the place was run as a saloon, but Franklin, he said, had always told him not to sell whisky. George W. Yocum, in summing up the case for his gin jerking client, made one of his characteristic cowboy speeches, in which he took occasion to revile the city government, its officers and the witnesses for the prosecution. He charged Policeman Collins, who secured the arrest of his client, as being worse than a criminal, and classed him with burglars and bank robbers. The mass of filth which he threw at the city in his basso-tremulo tones was effectively warded off by City Attorney Dement, who in a few words paid a deserved tribute to a faithful officer who endeavored by every means to do his duty to suppress vice and crime and aid in enforcing the city's laws. Judge Moreland reserved his decision in the case until to-day.

Bet on a Dead Thing.—Yesterday afternoon the crowd at Ball's boathouse espied the carcass of an animal floating down the river near the east shore. One of the crowd called attention to it by saying "There is a dead cow floating down the river." Another who thought he could see better said it was a horse. There was a great diversity of opinion in regard to the matter and finally a newspaper man who had been scanning the defunct animal through a pair of gold-bowed glasses, said, "I'll bet a dollar it is a cow." "I'll take that bet," yelled an auburn haired youth, familiarly known to boating men as "Brick Top." Another chap who thought he knew a cow from a horse offered to bet fifty cents that the animal was a mare. This bet was also taken by "Brick" and several fellows jumped into boats and rowed out to settle the matter. The carcass proved to be that of a horse, and the youth of crushed strawberry hair raked in the pot. After he had stowed away the coin he informed the crowd that he knew it was a horse as he had been up the river in a row boat an hour before and had examined it. So the fellow had been betting on a "dead thing" in every sense of the word.

Holladay Case Now at Issue.—After many delays and motions and other legal formalities in the state circuit court, the great case of Ben Holladay against Joe Holladay is now at issue, and pending the appointment of a referee to take testimony will be the next thing in order. Yesterday the counsel for Joe asked the court to discharge the receiver and return the property to his charge, pending the end of the suit. This was vigorously opposed by Ben's lawyers, who have already had too much of Joe's financiering, and who are eminently satisfied with the business like and profitable manner in which the estate is now being conducted. Judge Smith stated that he would take the motion under advisement. Then Joe's counsel objected to certain parts of Ben's reply, the latter stating that Joe had grossly mismanaged the estate while it was in his hands, and in many respects had been anything but a painstaking manager of so much valuable property. Joe's counsel demanded that these charges, if permitted by the court at all, should be more specifically stated, and this motion was, after considerable argument, allowed. Thus the case now stands.

Ouster Suggested.—Councilman Gerdes will at the council meeting to-morrow night insist on being recognized as a member of the committee on streets and public property and the special committee on [illegible]. He claims that he was appointed on these committees by Mayor Chapman at the meeting of the council on July 19, and that the subsequent action of the mayor in erasing his name from these committees was illegal. Gerdes will insist on the minutes of the meeting being read as they were recorded, so that the subsequent changes made in the list of committees be ruled out. Just how the matter will be decided it is difficult to say. Gerdes has found the road he has had to travel since he has been a member of the council and the champion of the cheap whisky [illegible] a very rocky one. There is a panacea for all his troubles. THE OREGONIAN will furnish free this infallible recipe by which he can secure peace of mind—resign.

Came to Meet Ingersoll.—Towards dark last night a patriarchal darkey, tall and slender, with white beard and closely cropped hair, harangued a crowd of idlers at the corner of First and Washington for half an hour or more. The old man said he was blind, but that he had not lost his power of oratory. He was in possession of the secret of the origin of man, a discovery he had made some ten years ago. This had raised him to the pinnacle of fame, from which nothing could displace him. But he did not seem to be received kindly in Portland. He had not been invited by men of science, or by ministers. He was a Professor Kane, ethnologist, phrenologist, theologian and minister of the gospel. His special mission was to meet Ingersoll and he offered his heart's blood as a guarantee that he would in half an hour's argument force the great infidel to retreat from his position of "No God, no heaven, no hell."

Burglar Baffled.—An attempt was made to burglarize the residence of Capt. W. H. Connor, corner Sixth and Hall streets, at half-past 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The thief effected an entrance through the pantry window, entered the kitchen, unlocked the outside door and extinguished the lamp that was left burning upon the table. Mr. W. Randall, a brother of Mrs. Connor, who occupied an apartment adjoining the kitchen, was awakened by hearing someone open his door, and jumped out of bed, whereupon the thief ran out through the door which he had previously opened, and escaped. As the city cannot, on account of the limited number of policemen, furnish protection to its citizens in that remote portion of the Third ward, residents of the locality should prepare themselves with six-shooters, and be ready to defend their homes and their lives against the depredations of nocturnal thieves and house-breakers.

Aid of French Sufferers.—Last night, pursuant to notice, a meeting of the French residents of Portland was held in the hall corner Third and Alder to take steps toward relieving the want of sufferers from cholera in France. Hon. A. Labbe was called to the chair and Jules Godard was chosen secretary. After a brief speech by the president stating the object of the meeting, $60 was subscribed by persons present. On motion subscription lists were ordered placed at the business houses of the following gentlemen: A. Labbe, J. Drouilhat, O. Pater, G. M. Simon, Le Bourd, Verdier & Closset, E. Perlot and J. [illegible]. It is not intended to keep subscriptions exclusively within French citizens, and contributions from any quarter will be thankfully received. The pitiful story of the sufferings is told daily by the telegrams.

More Changes Rumored.—It is rumored that an attempt will be made at the council meeting to-morrow night to place D. W. Taylor in the office of city auditor and clerk. Mr. Curry has discharged the duties of his office in a competent manner and just why he is to be removed is probably best known to those who wish it done. Taylor is no doubt well qualified to fill the office, but it will be a new departure for him. He and Chapman have filled the city surveyor's office turn and turn about for the last dozen years, and it will, in the natural course of things, soon be Taylor's turn again. If he can be made auditor Chapman will feel himself secure in his position.

Rent the Engine Houses.—The city owns three engine houses which it does not use. One is located on Washington street, between Second and Third, one near Thirteenth and G, and one on Fourth near Montgomery. It has refused to sell them and they are standing idle. Already windows have been broken, and the property is fast getting out of repair. A little revenue might be derived from the buildings if rented only for storage purposes. The old house could be rented at a fair figure, and the other two would bring in enough to pay for improvement at least. They should not stand idle. If it is possible, let them be rented.

Fire on a Ferryboat.—Just as the Stark street ferryboat was about to start from the east side on her 8 o'clock trip it was discovered that the large [illegible] lamp upon the west end of the boat was [illegible]. Capt. Van Auken [illegible] to the roof where the lamp was located, having [illegible] wet clothes to smother the flames. But the blaze had now become a great blaze and smothering was out of the question. Several young men on the boat formed a line with buckets and passed them to the captain who, with their help, quickly got the mastery over the fire. The lamp was ruined, but no other damage was done.

Going to be Reopened.—Judge Smith yesterday, in the state circuit court, issued an order permitting [illegible] Haas, the assignee of Lee & Marx, insolvent debtors and former proprietors of the Burton house, to reopen that hotel and run it in the interest of the creditors of the bankrupt concern. The furniture of the house is covered by chattel mortgages, and everything else needed to reopen must be purchased. Consequently, unless the house pays for itself from the start, the creditors will find themselves worse off than they are now.

[illegible].—[illegible], a woman in the den at the corner of Alder and Second streets over a Chinese gambling house, was arraigned in the police court yesterday. The degraded woman refused to testify against her miserable miscreant and he was in consequence let off with a fine of $5 for assault and another of the same amount for being drunk and disorderly. This useless scoundrel is said to belong to a respectable family in California, who send him money from time to time, thus purchasing his absence. He has evidently a desire to emulate the strangler Hutchings, and the chief of police will do well to take some means of securing his absence from this city. The police of San Francisco are making it tropical for the [illegible] of that city, and it is to be hoped that the lazy, low lived, useless, well fed parasites of this class who disgrace this city may be given permanent tickets of leave.

Sent to the Asylum.—The insane woman who was brought to the county jail on Sunday proves to be Elizabeth Small, the wife of David Small, who resides about six miles from town, on the Taylor's Ferry road. Yesterday Mr. Small came to town and stated that his wife escaped from him last Wednesday. It seems strange that he should have allowed her to wander in the woods till Sunday without notifying the neighbors and endeavoring to find her. She has been insane before, and was discharged from the asylum last December. She has four children. She was examined by the county court yesterday, adjudged insane, and was taken to the asylum by the afternoon train.

Let the Loafers Go.—The police are looking after vagrants with more than usual energy. Yesterday two were fined $25 each and another healthy looking rascal was fined the same sum for begging. Four fellows for roaming the streets after hours were fined $10 each. Let the good work go on. There is no excuse for vagrancy now, and no need of healthy people begging the means of support. Over the hills, just beyond the poor house lie the broad grain fields of Washington county, whence comes the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." Let the vags and beggars, and tramps and restless loafers fly to the plains, or else find themselves in the chaingang.

The Weather.—The mercury reached 91 yesterday and the afternoon was oppressive. As usual there was a delightful evening breeze from the south and clouds that threatened rain. About 6 P. M. the wind chopped suddenly to the north. As long as it stops there, but little hope of rain need be felt. Many during the present heated term expected rain to follow, and consequent damage to crops. Of course a shower or even a day or two's rain would do no harm, but the last rain we had made every one nervous and then when it once begins to rain it is so very uncertain when it will stop.

Assignment.—The Multnomah Lumber Company yesterday made an assignment to W. H. [illegible] for the benefit of creditors. The principal creditors are the assignee, $[illegible]; J. W. [illegible] about $4000, and F. Gatens $1165 75. The president of the company in certifying to the assignment stated that the company had also given notes to John S. Shearer and J. P. Coyne amounting to $3000, but says he does not know whether said notes were for a valid or any consideration, or whether the corporation had any authority to incur the debt to secure which these notes were given.

The Symptoms, Not the Disease.—Within three days several severe cases of cholera morbus have been reported which for a time alarmed the patients, not particularly on account of the attack but because they had heard of cholera abroad. All the patients seemed to be suffering from overdoses of cucumbers. It will be just as well for everybody to go light on watermelons and all manner of green fruit and unripe vegetables.

No Match.—It may be stated that all negotiations between the Star Base Ball club and the Alerts of Dallas, relative to a match, are off. H. B. Cooper, captain of the Alerts, has written to the Stars saying the bravado in the Reporter was unauthorized, that the club had not met since the Portland match, and probably would not get together for some time. No answer has been received from the Seattle "Reds" by the Stars.

State Circuit Court.—A large number of motions in equity came up in the state circuit court yesterday and were disposed of, but although Clerk Weidler was kept busy until after 10 o'clock last evening in writing up his record, yet the entire equity docket was not gone over. Judge Smith accordingly announced that he would continue to hear motions to-day the same as on yesterday.

Petty Burglaries.—The residence of Robert Habersham, just south of the city limits, was entered by a burglar a few nights since, who secured $25 in coin from the pantaloons pockets of Mr. Habersham and his son. The residence of a neighbor was also entered the same night, presumably by the same person, who was seen in this instance and failed to secure any plunder.

To Mount Adams.—The following party of young people leave to-day for the ice caves and the summit of Mount Adams: Emil S. Gullixson, H. Hildebrand, Fred Toude, Jos. Schade, Carl Pfluger, Lawrence Knapp and E. Hoone. They have taken guns and rods, and will hunt and fish along the Little White Salmon.

Name Changed.—The name "Kalama" has been painted out from the paddle boxes of the Northern Pacific new iron transfer boat, and "Tacoma" will be substituted. Several persons in authority favored the change. President Harris was particularly opposed to naming the boat for so unimportant a station.

A Straw.—A ballot was taken among the legal voters aboard the steamer Lurline Sunday night, on their presidential preferences. The result was: Blaine 66, Cleveland 11, Butler 7. However, this should not be accepted as conclusive. New York and the south are yet to hear from.

Overland Passengers.—Passed Heron yesterday, to arrive in Portland to-day: J. C. Ten Eyck, C. W. Brown, George H. Greer, James Dowdall, C. E. Robinson, O. D. Munson, wife and daughter, W. E. Warr, C. W. Putwin and daughter, and J. M. Moir.

BRIEF MENTION.

The Ladies' Relief Society holds its regular meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

J. W. Whalley, H. H. Northup and Paul R. Deady have formed a law partnership under the name of Whalley, Northup & Deady.

Mr John Wetherby of East Portland, who had suffered from strabismus since a small boy, had his eyes straightened a few days ago by a skillful operation performed by Dr. E. C. Brown.

A few days ago two boys, aged 5 and 7 years, named Johnnie and Richard Berry, were drowned in Mill creek at The Dalles within a few feet of the ice house. They were discovered lying dead in the water by two girls who were passing.

The heat seems to have a trying effect on some people's tempers, judging from the arrests by the police last night. Priscilla Goghan was brought to the city jail by Policeman Hickey for using abusive language, and Policeman Tennant performed a similar office for Thomas Connelly on the same charge.

Some little excitement was created in the vicinity of Turn-Halle yesterday by the actions of a dog, which was thought to be mad. The poor beast was probably suffering for water, and it is well known that many dogs have been killed under such circumstances as mad dogs. A mad dog or case of hydrophobia, it is believed, has never been heard of on this coast.

The large sign in front of C. Kuhn & Co.'s liquor store was blown down last evening and fell with a thundering crash on the awning beneath, scaring the seven senses out of several persons who were standing under it. That portion of this wicked and perverse generation were evidently not seeking a sign and were determined that no sign should be given them, so they traveled very fast in another direction.

THE EAST SIDE.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

Professor Wellzel, from the Champoeg university, Ill., has been selected as principal by the directors of school district No. 21, East Portland. The necessity for increased accommodation has been overcome by securing a lease of the lower hall in the Odd Fellows' building, on the corner of Tenth and J streets for the coming school year. The directors have been unable to place bonds at 7 per cent., as directed, for the erection of a school house in the northern part of the district.

FOR THE COAST.

Among the East Portlanders who leave for Ilwaco by the Wide West this morning are the following: Messrs. Julius Guldsmith, N. Merritt, A. L. Kirk, Ben and Ken West, B. F. Anemus and wife, Miss Lottie Baylor and brother, Miss Constance Jordan, Walter Parrott and W. Gibson.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

James Rankin lodged complaint in the recorder's court last evening, charging William Oliver, a fellow employe at Hogue's mill, with assault and battery. Particulars will appear at the examination to-day.

LEBANON NOTES.

LEBANON, Aug. 4.

No political clubs have yet been organized.

Potatoes are a drug on the market. They retail at 25 cents per bushel.

J. C. Rilyen and W. J. Gay and families are rusticating in the mountains.

The Lebanon engine and hose company will take part in the coming tournament.

Last Saturday was the hottest day so far. The mercury reached 97 degrees in the shade.

Some betting on the result of the presidential election has been indulged in, on an even basis.

The plum crop is unusually large, and many farmers are drying, as there is no sale at the present.

The frame of the new church is erected, and the further completion will follow as speedily as possible.

Good judges claim that the oat crop will be from a third to a half, and wheat fully a fourth greater than ever before harvested at any season in this vicinity.

Frank Nickerson, living near here, brought in a stool of wheat that counted ninety-three stalks from one grain, and which had eighty-four heads of well filled grain, some of them measuring seven inches.

Landscape and Ornamental Gardening.

For some weeks past the grounds adjoining the [illegible] residences of C. H. Lewis and H. [illegible], in the west end, have shown that a thorough hand has been taking care of the premises. The gardener, we learn, is Mr. William Wallace, who, prior to his advent here, has superintended the arrangement of Mrs. Mark [illegible] grounds near San Francisco. [illegible] Mr. Wallace [illegible] as a landscape gardener [illegible]. Mr. Wallace is at Mr. C. H. Lewis', corner Nineteenth and G streets.

Expression of Thanks.

PORTLAND, Aug. 4, 1884.

To [illegible]:—The undersigned personal friends of the late A. R. [illegible] desire to return their sincere thanks to [illegible] and through him to the O. & C. R. R. Co. for special train to [illegible] and return on Saturday last, so kindly tendered for our use, thus enabling us to assist in performing the last sad rites [illegible] a worthy citizen and valued friend.

Respectfully,
R. MALLORY,
J. W. CLARK,
GEO. H. CHANCE,
J. R. FOSTER,
C. E. SITTON,
D. H. WILLIAMS,
L. W. PRATT,
R. NEWCOMB,
C. TAYLOR,
D. C. McKERCHER,
and forty others.

[illegible] Music Parlors, Second and Washington.

About [illegible] this morning fire broke out in [illegible] drug store on the north [illegible] Fourth and L streets. [illegible] the [illegible] communicated [illegible] north on Fourth street [illegible] buildings occupied as saloons by Jos Buildt, J. DeLine, Ross & [illegible], the Campi restaurant and others, taking in the entire block on the west side of Fourth street between K & L. The buildings were owned by Charlie Logus; approximate loss $15,000 to $18,000, insured from half to two-thirds of their value.

The frame block on L street, west of Logus caught, and the east room was consumed.

At 2:20 No. 2's engine and cart arrived from Portland and after the loss of several minutes' valuable time, because there was no one on the East Side to direct their movements, took station at the ferry slip. It was thought at 2:30, when our reporter left the scene, that the Portland engine would be able to save the remainder of the block on the south side of L street.

Owing to the lateness of the hour individual losses and insurance could not be obtained, but each tenant, of course, is a loser. Very little of Logan and Irving's stock was saved.

ANOTHER BLOCK GONE.

3:10 A. M.—From the roof of THE OREGONIAN office it can be seen that the frame range on the south side of L street has caught at the corner of Fourth and is blazing fiercely. A strong breeze is blowing from the north and east, and it looks as if the entire block as far as Beck's livery stable will go.

OCCUPANTS.

The Logus block was occupied as follows: On D street—Logus' pork packery, Monogram saloon, occupied by Logus; Warren's variety and notion store; C. H. Graham, painter; Mr. G. Wheeler, fish market; Underhill & May, insurance agents; besides a candy and fruit stand. The Central drug store occupied the corner. On L street were: James Riddell's Butte saloon; L. P. Fose, barber shop; S. Dillane, saloon; Foss & Ross, saloon; Campi restaurant, Lurlach & Braun, proprietors; M. Altstock, tailor; Schneider & Felman, saloon.

At 3:50 the fire was under control. It took out the southwest corner of Fourth and L, but did not cross Fourth street. Total loss, about $30,000.

CHARLOTTE THOMPSON IN "JANE EYRE."

To all readers of English fiction, Charlotte Bronte's masterpiece, "Jane Eyre," is thoroughly familiar. In all the necessary essentials of plot, situation, incident and dramatic interest the story of "Jane Eyre" occupies a position in the front rank of English romance. Rightly merits the place it holds, for among the most competent critics it is a novel of marvelous power and interest. However the story in many respects, measured by the infallible rule of human nature, is unreal and improbable. All these defects are atoned for by the author in her keen, subtle insight into human motives, her skillful arrangement of the material in hand, her felicity of diction, her terseness of style, and lastly by her almost matchless power of portrayal of pathos and passion. No accurate, adequate dramatization of such a novel can be made, even in the hands of an experienced, expert dramatist. An imperfect adaptation is all that can hoped to be accomplished in transferring this story of deep emotion and intense feeling to the drama. The bills very properly announce that the drama is suggested by the more salient incidents of the romance. To have attempted more would inevitably have resulted in failure. The story involves so many varied phases of life, deals with so many localities, and extends over so many years—nearly two decades—that it cannot be carried down to the limits of stage proprieties, and be made consistent with dramatic unities.

But with the drama alone we have to deal. The play of Jane Eyre, as presented last evening at New Market theater by Miss Charlotte Thompson, supported by the full company, was a very commendable and satisfactory performance. There are a number of adaptations or versions now being played, but probably Miss Thompson's [illegible] is more consistent throughout and [illegible] than any now occupying the stage. Of necessity there are a number of radical innovations. There are lapses of years and wide gaps in the chain of incidents as they crowd forward to the final climax. Some prominent characters are wholly ignored and new ones are created.

The play consists of a prologue, and three acts of the drama, proper. Between the close of the prologue and the opening of the drama, a period of nearly ten years elapses. Jane Eyre's entire painful experience at the Lowood charity school is left to the imagination to supply. The three acts omit more than half of the real incidents that follow in the story. For instance there are no allusions to the attempted false marriage, to Jane Eyre's clandestine flight from Thornfield, her subsequent sufferings, her experience among strangers, and her return to the blackened ruins of the old castle. Lord Rochester's frightful mutilation, and pitiable blindness are both mercifully omitted.

Miss Thompson's portrayal of the character of the cruelly wronged orphan was careful and conscientious. It was more. It was strong in its individuality, always natural, and instinct with true dramatic feeling. There was no lack of power when the exigency demanded it; but at all times there was that conscious reserve force that denotes the genuine artiste. Whether in portraying pathos, vindictive spite or delivering withering sarcasm, she was easy and perfectly self-possessed. Her concluding scene with Lord Rochester was the crowning act of the performance.

Mr. Craig made a most acceptable Lord Rochester. Both in appearance and manner he seemed eminently efficient. He is a strong, graceful actor, with a clear, bell-like voice, has an admirable stage presence and does not over act. As the proud, imperious and somewhat cynical Englishman, he was thoroughly dignified and stately.

Miss Annie Adams, an old Portland favorite, received quite a flattering reception on her initial entrance on the stage. She played the thankless part of Lady Georgiana Ingram, a haughty, heartless English beauty, for all there was in the character. Miss May Seymour played the character of Mrs. Sarah Reed, the cruel aunt, as heartless as the part required. Mrs. Louisa Watson made an excellent Mrs. Fairfax—a real kind, motherly old housekeeper—with a warm heart and a great deal of [illegible] tude for the governess and her master. W. F. Doyle played the rough, uncouth character of Colonel Henry Dent very well. H. Renarey as the [illegible], sanctimonious Professor Brocklehurst, did excellently. The characters of Jacob [illegible] (J. L. Wooderson) and [illegible] DeLeon (William Yerance) were both capitally sustained. They contributed largely to the enjoyment of the evening.

This notice would be incomplete without a pleasant allusion to the character of Adele, which was played very prettily by little Silver Miller.

Notwithstanding the extreme heat a good audience was present. Miss Thompson was called before the curtain at the close of every act.

Jane Eyre will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night.

YAMHILL NOTES.

McMINNVILLE, August 4.

There is a demand for harvest hands.

Jonathan Todd of this place, returned home from a two months' trip to the east on Saturday.

E. B. Fellows has bought the wheat warehouse of W. A. Wells, and is remodeling the cleaning apparatus.

A company of militia will be organized here Saturday evening next. D. H. Turner is the mustering officer.

A man arrived here a few days ago from Montana, bringing with him a horse 28 years old, which he claims carried him through the rebellion.

The work on the bridge between this place and Amity is being pushed with energy. It is the intention to have it done in time for some of the wheat hauling.

A son born to the wife of Rev. T. H. Henderson of this place to-day, has but one hand, the right forearm being absent half way to the elbow, otherwise the child is well formed.

[illegible] the Water Co. Makes a [illegible] and the Marshal [illegible] a Report, but Council Won't Increase [illegible] Police Force.

The regular meeting of the East Portland common council [illegible] Mayor Sanders in the chair, [illegible] proceedings had:

[illegible] street, asking for [illegible] from Jefferson to [illegible] sidewalks four feet in [illegible], also, by laying [illegible] on streets and public property.

From sixty business men and citizens, asking the council to reconsider the action by which the police force was reduced, and asking the reappointment of S. Stafford, deeming him a good and efficient officer. On motion of Loring, laid on the table.

From H. R. Lory and [illegible], remonstrating against the proposed improvement of B street between First and Water. Referred to the committee on streets.

From property owners, asking the improvement of Tenth street between Adams and Jefferson, by grading and laying sidewalks and cross walks. The usual notice was ordered in accordance therewith.

From the committee on fire and water, reporting they had witnessed a test of the fire hydrant on the corner of Seventh and D streets, and found the same satisfactory, and recommend its acceptance by the city. Adopted, Kindorf voting no.

From the committee on streets, with certificate of the street commissioner and city surveyor attached, certifying to work done on Seventh street by T. R. Turnbull. Adopted, and warrant ordered drawn for amount of claim.

From the same, recommending that the street commissioner be directed to take the [illegible] from Water street, between J and L, and lay the same on Fourth street, between K and L. Adopted.

From the same, recommending that the Standard Oil Company be allowed to lay a side track to connect their proposed warehouse with the O. & C. road at S street. Adopted.

From the same, recommending payment of Gus Waterford's claim of $[illegible] for cleaning the streets for the Fourth of July; adopted.

From the committee on judiciary, recommending that James Grady be refunded $50 on his saloon license, through being burned out; adopted.

From the same, recommending that no license be issued for a Chinese washhouse on J street, between Fifth and Sixth, as it would be in violation of the ordinance governing the same; adopted.

[illegible].

From the street committee, recommending that certain lamp posts and lamps destroyed by James Lyons and A. R. Kelly, having been replaced by the city, steps be taken to recover damages from the parties mentioned. On motion of Wheeler, referred to the city attorney and city marshal for collection.

A [illegible] AND A REQUEST.

The following communication was read from Marshal Linville:

To the Honorable the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of East Portland—GENTLEMEN: At a recent meeting of your honorable body I was instructed to notify the railroad company to fill up some wells dug by them. After considerable trouble I found the Northern Pacific Terminal Company were the proper ones to remove said nuisance. I notified them, but they have failed to do so. They gave me to understand that these wells were on their property, but said they would attend to it immediately. Owing to the city having so many law suits on hand, I thought it best to await further orders before starting another.

Further, I would like to state that at the last regular meeting I was instructed to discharge one policeman, and I have complied with said order by discharging S. Stafford from the force. I have heard some talk of your putting on another man at this meeting. Although I have no control of these things, I think it right and proper that I should be consulted in regard to the man that is put on; and I take the liberty of stating further that I think the police force is too small for the amount of duty that is expected to be performed. At the present our city is full of vagabonds, tramps and petty thieves, depredations being committed every night. During the day I have one by three miles of territory to look after; besides, there are four trains arriving here daily at the different depots almost at the same hour and nearly half a mile apart, and it is very essential and necessary to have an officer at each train. With the assistance of only two policemen it is impossible for me to protect the city as it should be. We are the second and largest city in the state, and the whole of the police force as it now stands only costs $[illegible] per year, and I think in the last six months there has been half that amount expended in cutting the brush off of W. S. Ladd's and other wealthy men's property. I heartily agree with you in practicing economy in every department, but under the present circumstances I don't think a reduction in the police force is good economy. Respectfully yours,

GEO. LINVILLE, City Marshal.

On motion of Wheeler that part of the report referring to the wells was referred to the city attorney, and on motion of Loring, that part referring to the brush was referred to the street committee.

As to that portion concerning the police force, Wheeler moved that it be laid on the table. Smith amended by empowering the marshal to employ another policeman. The amendment was lost by the following vote: Ayes, Smith and Grimes; nays, Loring, Nicolai, Kindorf and Wheeler. The original motion then passed by a reverse vote.

CLAIMS ORDERED PAID.

E. P. Water Co.	$100 00	L. A. Patterson	[illegible]
James McGrew	[illegible]	O. H. Hollinger	[illegible]
E. P. Gas Co.	[illegible]	A. M. Austin	12 37
J. G. Schmidt	[illegible]	George Linville	[illegible]
Vindicator	6 00

A bill from the E. P. Gas Light Co. for furnishing lamps and lamp posts was referred to the committee on fire and water.

[illegible].

Providing for the establishment of a fire hydrant at the corner of L and Twelfth streets. Read three times and passed under a suspension of the rules.

MEMORANDUM.

In connection with the ordinance the following memorandum was read:

"This memorandum witnesseth: There being urgent necessity for more extensive facilities for the extinguishment of fires, and as the city of East Portland is unable to pay a greater amount than the sum already paid for such services, viz: $200 per month; therefore, the East Portland Water Company, realizing [illegible] and the great need of further protection against fire, do hereby agree and covenant that the city of East Portland have the privilege of establishing and locating as many fire hydrants as may be deemed necessary by said city, connections to be made with the mains of the company that are now in use or that may be established by the company during the period of the existing contract between said city and said East Portland Water Company, without any further cost to the city of East Portland; provided, that nothing in this agreement shall be construed as a relinquishment of any part of the contract as now existing between said East Portland Water Company and the city of East Portland, but is an admitted concession on the part of said company to said city; provided, also, that all hydrants connected with the mains of the company shall be connected in a good and workmanlike manner and to the satisfaction of the superintendent of said water company."

RESOLUTIONS, ETC.

By Wheeler, that the mayor and auditor and clerk be directed to enter into contract on behalf of the city with the East Portland Water Company, in accordance with the provisions of the above memorandum; adopted.

By Smith, that the fire and water committee be directed to purchase a tender for the Pioneer Engine company; referred to the committee on fire and water.

By Smith, that the recorder be directed to issue warrants for the collection of all outstanding assessments for the improvement of Jefferson street; adopted.

By Kindorf, that the recorder be directed to bid upon property sold for delinquent street assessments for the improvement of Fourth street to the amount of tax and costs, and no more; adopted.

Adjourned.

A WORD FOR LINCOLN COUNTY, W. T.

SPRAGUE, W. T., Aug. 1.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I have for the past three weeks devoted my time to traveling over the new county of Lincoln, and must confess I am surprised at the rapidity with which that section has been settled up, and the quality of the crops now being harvested. Two years ago this vast tract of productive land was almost unheard of; now one has to travel almost forty miles from the railroad toward the Columbia river before he can find vacant government land. Postoffices have been established here and there, and little towns are springing into existence.

Yesterday I passed a few hours on the fine farm of Mr. John Hogan, distance about eight miles northeast of Harrington, a place situated in the center of the county, about twenty-three miles from Sprague. Mr. Hogan has 300 acres planted to wheat which will easily yield forty bushels to the acre, and this on land that has only been worked twice. He has forty acres of what is known as red wheat; the straw being as red as buckwheat straw, though the kernel is full, firm and of a white color. He will supply many of the Lincoln county farmers with seed wheat this fall. Mr. Hogan has a model farm—a fine, large stable, good residence, well built, substantial outhouses; in fact, such a place as one would see in the east, and I have seen many places like this gentleman's during my journey through Lincoln county.

Unlike the farmers of eastern Umatilla and the Walla Walla country, settlers in the Big Bend are more inclined to diversify their work. At nearly every place can be seen crops of oats, barley, rye, corn, and a large garden patch.

Apropos of gardens, this is a great vegetable country, especially for potatoes. The surface of the land is rolling, the uplands being most productive, and the soil retains moisture most wonderfully. The principal drawback so far has been the fact that most of the settlers have for lack of means been unable to work their farms, being compelled to find employment during the harvest season in older settled localities. But they are coming out all right, and it is estimated that while [illegible] acres of sod were broken last year in the neighborhood of Harrington, nearly 12,000 acres will be turned over next season.

The county assessor has just completed his labor and I take the following recapitulation from his rolls: Total valuation of lots and tracts of land, $407,574; total valuation of improvements on land, $[illegible]; total valuation of personal property, $[illegible]; total valuation of all property assessed, $[illegible]. So it will be seen how wonderfully fast this county has been settled and improved.

The county has three newspapers—the Sprague Herald, Lincoln County Leader and Harrington Times. The former journal is the oldest, but for life and rustle the latter leads the van. Just now a lively war is waged over the county seat question—Sprague, Harrington and Davenport being the contestants. Each place has an organ to fight its claims, but although working against fearful odds, the Times is forging ahead, and I think the outcome will be that Harrington, situated in the center of the county, as she is, will be chosen as the county seat, the question being voted on at the next general election.

In conclusion, I will add that the farmers of this county are perfectly satisfied with the climate and productiveness of the soil, and claim that if it is properly worked the yield will equal eastern Oregon; and from what I have seen I believe they are correct. There are now and will be excellent business opportunities throughout the county, and in less than three years towns of importance and wealth will be scattered throughout the Big Bend. While it may be a little slow for those who come in now, it should not be forgotten that the "early birds catch the worms." As for me, I am perfectly satisfied to cast my lot with Lincoln county, after a trip of observation extended over three weeks. By the way, it may not be out of place to add that THE OREGONIAN is here, as everywhere else in the northwest, anxiously looked for by the farmers, and it loses none of its popularity from the fact of its being a day or two old ere it reaches them.

OCCASIONAL.

Four of the Principal People Desert the Orpheus and Eurydice Company.

San Francisco Chronicle, July 31.

One of those phenomena which every now and again stagger managers into a sense of the absurdity of the present scale of salaries was exhibited at the Baldwin theater last night. It was neither more nor less than the performance of Orpheus and Eurydice without the four most expensive people, which, allowing for the play being over a little earlier, went through with very little appreciable difference in the effect on the audience. It seems that some little delay was necessary in the payment of salaries, and as Mills telegraphed that he would be in San Francisco in a few days and square up matters, Manager Hayman advanced enough money to pay off the smaller people, who work very hard for little money. Digby Bell is stated to have been drawing $250 for forty weeks, Vanoni $265, the others proportionately high wages, making a total of about $750 a week. The management owed these people one week's salary up to yesterday. Late yesterday afternoon it was a settled fact that they had declined to appear unless that week's salary was paid. Mr. Williams immediately called the people, recast the play, put Mr. Grant in Mr. Bell's part, Miss Murdock in Miss Mills's, Miss Prince in Miss Vanoni's, made some few other changes, and most of the audience did not enjoy the play any the less. Miss Murdock is a prettier Cupid, more graceful, more flexible, more attractive than Miss Mills. Miss Prince is not able to do Vanoni's specialties, which are the only things missed from the performance. But she is a very piquant and pretty Eurydice and sings well enough to fill the place thoroughly satisfactorily. Indeed, what the last act loses the first act gains. Mr. Grant will be quite easy in Jupiter to-night, and he sings fully as well as Bell. Altogether, the performance has more "go" to it, as it is now an ensemble not overshadowed by two or three people who monopolize the stage. It saves $750 a week, and it is certain that it does not make that difference to the performance.

THE FIFTH WEEK HAS COMMENCED.

The public has taken advantage of our great clearance sale far beyond our expectations. This proves that we have superior goods, at lower prices, than any other house in town. The clothing buyers of the state of Oregon have already recognized that fact; there is no better class of goods anywhere, nor at any closer figures, than those sold by KOHN & STEINBACH. And yet one visit will convince all that our prices range from 25 to 40 per cent. lower than can be found at any other clothing-house in the city.

We invite one and all to call at our place,

Confessions of a Northern [illegible] who [illegible] Bill with a Bear.

AN OLD BOATMAN'S STORY

Ned Buntline's Old Home and a Man who Personated the Great Fiction Writer—A Romance of the Mountains.

Corr. Philadelphia Times.

"Bears!" said our guide, as the canoe shot through the stream that connects Blue Mount and Eagle lakes; "heaps on 'em, and this 'ere particular spot makes me laugh every time I go by."

"How so?"

"Well, it was something like this: You see over in Eagle lake Ned Buntline's old home stands. You can just see his house on the clearin'. You've heard on him, I reckon? He's a literary chap nowadays—writes for books and these ere big story papers, and the way he can slash off poetry's a caution. He writ a piece on his place here. The first varse goes like this:" And ceasing rowing and removing a ponderous quid, the old guide repeated Buntline's lines:

Where the silvery gleam of the rushing stream
Is so brightly seen on the rocks dark green;
Where the white pink grows by the wild red rose
And the bluebird sings till the welkin rings.

NED BUNTLINE AS A GUIDE.

"But poetry ain't his stronghold," the guide continued. "He was the best shot, guide and fisherman on the lakes in his day. He came here years ago from the south somewhere, and I believe he's livin' in Kentucky now—as good a feller as ever walked, and if he ever had an enemy it was his same self. Well, I'm gettin' off the track, but what I was gettin' at was this: You see, all hands has heard of Ned Buntline, and they all inquire for him the first thing, and if they can't see him they want to see his place, and I've made many a dollar rowin' folks over to the Eagle's Nest—that's what he used to call it, because there was an eagle's nest hard by.

"Why," said the old guide, "there was such a rush to see Ned a few years ago that an old cove settled up here and let on that he was Buntline himself. He fooled lots of folks and it got to be a kind of a joke, and when anybody asked to see Ned Buntline we used to take 'em over to the old man, which was right enough, as he called himself so. He was an old fraud, though, and had some queer yarns about how he used to go to sea and the terrible wrecks he was in, and pirates this and that. He always showed a big knife, with a handle that you could use two hands on, that he said he took from a pirate in the East Injy seas. I tell you it was entertainin' to hear him spout; but they say there's an end to all things, and so it was with the bogus Ned. One day a comfortable sort of a chap, with his wife, came to the hotel at Blue Mount and says to me (I was a settin' on the piazzy): 'I hear Ned Buntline's around agin. I thought he was dead.' 'He seems to be livin',' says I, kinder short like. 'Ned and I was old cronies once,' says the old gent. 'Just paddle me over to his place, will you?' 'Sartin,' says I, and in he got, and in half an hour we were at the old man's; when the two see each other I thought I'd bust. They just stood thar and looked at one another, with their mouths wide open, for about five minutes; then the old gent kinder gasped out, 'Bob!' and the bogus Ned says 'Bill!' and then they regularly fell into each other. I see the tears tricklin' down the old man's face, and then he hauls himself up and says: 'Well, Bill, you're at it agin,' and then they put me out and there was talkin' for an hour. Then they came out and I pulled the old man back to the hotel, but the next day he left for North creek, and the old bogus Ned was gone, too. I never heard where he went, but a man told me afterwards that they were brothers. The chap that had been playin' Ned was a kind of a hard case, and they had been kinder lost for years and so met.

AN ADIRONDACK ROMANCE.

"This 'ere's a great place for folks to come hidin' away," continued the talkative guide. "A party came up here years ago and stopped up at the hotel. One day they made ready to go up through the lakes as far as Paul Smith's and had some Saranac guides to take 'em, and when they was about settin' into the boats one of the ladies happened to cast an eye on one of the guides and gave a scream and fell over in a dead faint. The feller he was as pale as death, and he picked her up, and, takin' off his hat, he says: "Ladies and gentlemen, this 'ere's my wife. We had some differences, and I left years ago.' And I'm blessed," said the old man, stopping the canoe and grasping some water-lilies, "if they didn't make up. He's livin' in style in New York city and comes up here a regular swell, with his servant, and I tell you the boys ain't forgot when he's around. He never forgets he was guidin' himself. I never heard the outs and outs of how it was. I ain't much for inquirin' into folks' affairs, but they said how he married a gal that had heaps of money and he hadn't a cent. She kept throwin' it up to him till he got his back up, as the sayin' is, and left, and, bein' kind of shamed, he dug out and came up here guidin' folks on the Saranac, never expectin', I suppose, to meet any of his connection. Regular romantic I call it.

"Well, we're gettin' at that b'ar story kinder slow, but as I was sayin' one day I was takin' a party up to the Eagle's Nest. Comin' back we stopped off here, and the lady got out and went over on the rock with her husband. I reckon they wasn't over and above long married, for she was readin' a poetry book to him, and I was settin' just there in the boat smokin' and thinkin' how tastes run when all to once she gave the out-and-outenest yells I ever heard. It gave me such a turn I dropped my pipe, a four-year-old, and looking up there was the lady a faintin' and he haulin' her towards the boat by the arms, and right behind them, standin' all took back, was a big black bear and two cubs. I reckon she was nigh scaret to death, too, for she just gave one look and then got off into the brush, and I had to set there and let her go, for I hadn't a gun or nothin'. I tell you I couldn't get back to the hotel quick enough for them two, and they told that story about fifty times a day for two weeks. Then a newcomer told it to me, and I'm blessed if I recognized it at first. It had regular riz and been tacked on to, so that when it came out in the New York paper it was about the worst fight I ever heard of.

CHASED BY A BEAR.

"Bears is dretful cute," added the guide. "Now nearly half an hour after we sighted that one I was on the spot agin with half a dozen young fellers and three or four good bear dogs, but we never got a smell of her, and I tramped it all the afternoon. If you go out without your gun you're tol'able sure to see game. In the winter the bears lay up, you know—that is, there's nothin' to eat, no berries nor nothin'—so they, as a general thing, dig a kind of a burrow under a rock or tree and go in and sleep it out until spring. They get fat on the fall berries and feed on their own fat all winter, and in the spring come out with their cubs that are born in the winter, thin and generally savage, and it's then that you want to look out for 'em; but it's rare that any one is attacked. Last year a man from the hotel started up Blue Mount to get some spring water for a gentleman, who was very particular about it, and a few minutes after he was heard coming down the incline head over heels, his two pails behind him and after them a big black bear, growlin' and raisin' the very mischief, but she stopped before she got to the bottom. It seems that he'd got to the spring and turnin' suddenly to it had come upon the old bear and cubs and had struck one of the young 'uns with his foot as it ran in front of him. This started the old one and away they went. No, they never caught her; she got away somehow.

"When I was a yonker," said the old guide, "things were something different. There wasn't a house within ten miles of this place then, and all sorts of game was common. Wildcat and puma was just as common in them days I was goin' to say as black flies is now. Anyway, you couldn't wander along a great way without runnin' foul of one or t'other. In the winter, you know, the lakes are frozen over tight and you can cross anywhere. Well, one winter, when I was about 19, we lived up by Long lake. The old man was trappin' and I doin' some loggin', and one night he left me to bring home the team alone. I had two oxen on, and got out into the middle of the lake when it commenced to snow, and in ten minutes I was about as mixed up as you please. I came to the shore, though, and kept along until I got to the carry and then I started down. I reckon I'd gone about a hundred yards when I began to suspicion that something was after me. I stopped the team, but I couldn't hear nothin'. Then I started agin, and just as the critters began to move I could hear the crackle of the twigs not far off, just as if some big animal was follerin' me up. I urged the team on, but they began to get narvous themselves, and at last stopped short and begun to make a kind of a lowin' sound. I was settin' on the top of the pile then, with an axe in one hand and a long whip in the other, and I'd just started to get down when bim! came somethin' on the load, and the next moment I either was knocked off or fell between the oxen and off they started. As luck would have it, the sled was one of those high ones they used to use in them days, and ran right over me as slick as you please. I'd clung to the axe somehow, and as soon as the load slid over me I up and started on, and when I got up to the team there was a wrastle, the likes of which I never saw before. Both oxen had fallen down; one of 'em nearly had its neck broke, and right between, half under one ox, screamin', yellin' and scratchin', was the biggest puma I ever see. She had lept at the team, or me, I reckon, and that made a grab at the critter, and had done the same as I had, slipped between 'em, and one had fell on her. For a minute I couldn't nowise hear for the [illegible] [illegible] puma's head and dragged her out. She'd nigh skinned the off ox, and was long and thin like a snake. If she'd ever struck me I reckon I wouldn't have been here to tell the story; they're ugly cusses, to be sure.

The old frequenters of the Adirondack lakes look with regret at the innovations. The hotel with an elevator and the steam launches and yachts on the lakes, according to them, should never be admitted in the North woods. They claim, and rightly, that in a few years the charm of the place will have been exhausted and it will fall in side by side with the Catskills, where a thousand dollars' reward would not produce a deer and where trout are replaced by suckers and bullheads.

The trip from Blue Mount Lake up is one that well repays the torture of a thirty-mile stage ride to get to it. The road takes one over the highest land in New York state, a tract that former fires have completely devastated, hundreds of acres bearing only blasted and blackened trunks, whose limbs and branches extend outward like weird arms imploring aid. Twelve miles or so from Blue Mount the clumsy coach is changed for the springy buck-board, and behind the lively horses we dash around the base of Blue Mount, that looms up in the gloom of night. Nowhere in the state does the real forest appear in all its vigor as here. The chain of lakes nestled under the brow of the mountains are like mirrors, their banks freighted with wild roses, their bosoms matted with the water lilies, and as the wind blows from the west the strong piney odor, the fragrant spruce, combined with that of the flowers, is a tonic worth the having. The carries between the lakes are short and delightful relaxations from the monotony of a long row, and wind away among the trees by the side of the brook that is now low or disappeared entirely. When our canoe is again launched she floats upon a veritable sea of lilies, among which we wind in and out for a long way before coming to the broad waters of Raquette lake.

A FATEFUL DAY.

The Chapter of Accidents Surrounding the Great Lorillard Stake at Long Branch—How Orator Fell Dead.

At Monmouth Park, on the 8th of July, the race for the Lorillard stakes, formerly called the Jersey Derby, was of a sensational character, a rank outsider winning the stake and a brace of accidents going to make up the quota of surprises. The race had eight starters, viz.: W. L. Scott's Greystone, Appleby & Johnson's Orator, Wyndham Walden's Welcher, Leslie Bruce's Vocalic, Pierre Lorillard's Leo, the Preakness Stable's Himalaya and the Dwyer Brothers' Panique and Ecuador. Welcher and Greystone were equal favorites, with Himalaya and Panique the next in estimation, then Orator, Ecuador, Vocalic and Leo in that order. The New York Spirit records the incidents:

There was little or no delay at the post. A dash was noticed, the flag fell, and then came the usual cry, "They're off," and the usual running fire of comment, which sounds like the murmur of the sea. Ecuador was leading, with Greystone next, but they had hardly gone a quarter of a mile when the "black-and-yellow sleeves" of Preakness was seen to vanish, and, as the horses came into the stretch, all eyes were searching for the colt who had been the morning "tip," and on whose chances so many people's money was depending. Far in the rear and on the outside of the track a riderless horse was seen coming. It was Himalaya, and the next instant Feakes was seen walking slowly over the field. Ecuador was passed by Greystone, who led at the stand, with Ecuador and Orator close up, and there was no change until on the turn for home. The race looked Greystone's, as the gray was running as steady as a clock, but as they swung into the stretch Ecuador closed again, and at the same instant Leo ran up. Lewis, on Greystone, drew his whip, as did Shauer, on Leo, but 'twas of no avail. "It's Panique! Panique!" yelled the crowd. They could not realize that the colt who led the van in the red jacket of the Dwyers was the handsome but despised Ecuador, who, before they had realized the difference, dashed up the stretch and landed a winner of the richest stake of the year, with Greystone and Leo at his heels, Orator a close fourth.

The horses had scarcely pulled up when Orator was seen to fall and Hayward was seen standing at his side. A rush was made toward the spot, and the colt was found to be stone dead.

"How did it happen?" we asked Hayward, as we reached the spot.

"It was the strangest thing I ever saw, sir," he replied; "he finished well up, and seemed strong when I pulled him up, but I had hardly done so when I felt him totter, and I had hardly time to slip off when he fell and died without a struggle."

Himalaya was caught near the paddock. The colt was covered with dust from his fall and blood was flowing freely from his nostrils. It was a sad blow to his owner, one of the most representative sportsmen the American turf has ever known, but whose ill fortune has been of a most exasperating character. No colt ever started since Harold for the Withers stakes with more fond hopes on the part of his stable, hopes which were dashed by an unlooked for incident, and now when at last the colt had recovered his form, and was deemed to have the best chance he has ever had at any time during the year, the accident which blasted his chances was maddening.

"How in the world did he come to fall?" we asked Mr. Galway, as the accident, happening on the far turn, had not been seen by more than a dozen people.

"I have no idea," was his reply. "I haven't seen Feakes yet, but it's clear that there was a collision."

"He's an unfortunate colt," we remarked.

"It beats all I ever saw," replied Mr. Galway. "He was never doing better, and if it hadn't happened I feel certain he would have won."

We met Feakes soon after, and sought an explanation as to Himalaya's accident.

"It was just as we made the turn," said Feakes. "Welcher was in front of me, when, all of a sudden, I saw him stumble and fall back, almost on his hocks, and, before I could pull out my colt struck Welcher and fell headlong. He went whirling out into the middle of the track, falling on his head, and sent me fifty feet ahead of him. I thought I'd never stop rolling. Before I could get up the colt scrambled to his feet and ran away after the others."

"Were you injured at all?"

"No, sir; it was bad enough to lose the race without being hurt. When I got up I could hardly walk. My legs are badly bruised, and now my hand begins to ache from the jar I got in falling."

"But you say it was Welcher's stumbling that upset Himalaya. How came Welcher not to fall?"

"I don't know, sir. He was falling backwards. I think, perhaps, my horse hitting him from behind sent him on his feet again."

Himalaya's fall injured him to an extent which has not been determined. The colt bled at the nose for nearly an hour after the race, and Farley, the veterinarian who examined him, was busy with him when we left. It was not then settled whether the flow of blood was from concussion or the rupture of an artery, but grave doubts were felt whether the colt could be got fit again for some time.

Welcher did not escape injury, as after the race he was found to have been badly cut down, the accident happening at the time of his collision with Himalaya, and he was never in the race after. Whether the cutting down was done by Himalaya, or Leo, who was at his side, cannot be ascertained. Feakes, on Himalaya, says he saw Welcher falter before Himalaya ran into him. At all events, it places Welcher on the shelf for awhile.

A Ride on the Back of a Shrieking Fiend.

Savannah News.

A most amusing and singular occurrence was witnessed in Jessup yesterday morning. When the mail train from Savannah arrived a buzzard was observed perched upon the engine, just below the smoke-stack. The moment the train stopped he flew to the roof of the nearest building, there to collect his scattered senses and meditate upon his "deadhead" ride. The whistle of the engine, when the train started, seemed to remind him of his adventure, for he hastily scrambled to the opposite side, where he remained concealed until the train was beyond hearing. He then resumed his sun-bath, and enjoyed it, no doubt, to an unlimited extent. It is supposed that while attempting to fly across the railroad track the buzzard was caught by the engine, and was kept by the pressure of the air in his peculiar position until the train arrived at Jessup.

Why a Poor Old Uncle was Surprised.

Gainesville Bee.

An old negro walked up to the postoffice window yesterday and asked for a money order application. It was given him and he drew up the paper for $10 and handed it back to the clerk, who proceeded to draw the order. The order being drawn, the clerk handed it to the darkey and asked for the $10. In response he drew forth from his pocket an old greasy $10 Confederate bill and demanded "de change." The clerk informed him that under the present administration he was not allowed to take that class of money and gave it back. The darkey seemed much surprised, but carefully folded the bill and put it in his pocket as he marched out with a "two for a cent" look upon his face.

A Knot-Hole as a Doorway for Bees.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

A curious thing has taken place in the town of Jo[illegible]. A large swarm of bees alighted near William Van Cleef's house. An effort was made to capture them, but the insects espied a knot-hole on the side of the house and into it they went. They have begun to deposit their stores of honey on the inside of the casing.

DEBUSSY.

A Young French Composer Wins the Prix de Rome

The Prix de Rome has been decided, and rather outside of the usual line. A young man, a pupil of M. Ernest Guiraud—M. Debussy, is the happy hero. The subject of the cantata was the "Enfant Prodigue" of M. Guinand. The talent of the new musician is entirely original, spontaneous and charming; if still somewhat fitful, undecided and of rather violent dramatic tendency, it has a certain joyous ring of individuality, which is delightful in these days of harmonious discordant symphony. M. Debussy is a young fellow of some 19 or 20 years. His parents, whose easy circumstances gave him ample opportunity for reflective study, have encouraged his vocation, and it may be truthfully stated that he lives in his art, and for that alone. His character is not at all morose; quite the contrary. All the pupils of Vibert—when that maître decided upon trying a series of youthful talents to discover that "one desideration of all masters, an eleve—which, by the way, he found in our own countryman, Marius Simons—can remember the frequent visits of the fortunate Debussy. He used to sit at the piano in the studio for hours, improvising melodies on poems of Vibert's construction. These poems were always satires on the leading operatic libretti. When a ballet was deemed necessary to the subject all the pupils would abandon the easel and become ballerina. The model being usually better looking and more agile than the rest, he or she were entitled to the star role of Sangalli. Vibert particularly insisted upon such poetica license as the appearance of ballet girls in low-neck muslin and silken tights—amid the snow-clad mountains of Switzerland, in Rossini's "Guillaume Tell." Then Debussy would indulge in what the master called classical concerts. They were verbal explanations with characteristic piano illustrations of such ponderous works as the "Pastoral Symphony" and others of like importance. Vibert is no lover of piano music, and when the charming interpretations of Chopin—Debussy's favorite composer—had driven him almost wild, he would rush to the piano to finish the entertainment, as he styled it, by producing himself musical pictures of railroad trains, with a possible smash-up. The rumble was always portrayed by a continuous out-of-tune tremolo in the bass and the frequent whistling by desperate, sudden attack on the upper notes. Poor Debussy usually made hasty retreat. The tragic weirdness of some of his musical thoughts may have taken birth in the harrowing memories of Vibert's fancy.

SOCIAL TRAGEDIES.

A Young Lady's Death by Burning that Recalls Mrs. Longfellow's Death.

New York Sun.

Since the death of the young and lovely wife of the poet Longfellow, which occurred more than twenty years ago at her beautiful home in Cambridge, scarcely anything more tragical has taken place among well known people than the accident by which Miss Laura Delano lost her life. When the worst has happened suggestions are as unavailing as regrets, and yet calamities of this kind are all the more harrowing by reason of their appearing to the survivors to be so unnecessary and easily avoided. In the case of Mrs. Longfellow the sleeve of her muslin dress was ignited by a taper which she was using in making sealing wax impressions to amuse her children. Terror, confusion and dismay followed. The house had been put in summer order, after the fashion of American housekeepers in those days; not a carpet, rug or blanket was to be had, and although her husband was on the spot and nearly lost his own life in heroic efforts to extinguish the flame, the unfortunate lady perished on her own lawn and in sight of all that she held most dear. Almost the same tragedy was enacted in the case of Miss Delano last Sunday. She was but 19 years of age, and endowed by nature with graces of mind and character which were only equaled by her remarkable personal beauty. While she was adjusting an alcohol lamp especially adapted to the heating of minute tongs for the curling of ladies' front locks, it is supposed that the flame shot up, setting fire to her hair, and in a few moments she had rushed out of doors a blazing mass of fire. A little foresight or presence of mind—a blanket from the bed, a shawl wrapped round her, and a valuable life might have been saved.

The Washington Penny.

John W. Haseltine, the antiquary and numismatist, tells a curious story of his accidental discovery of the General Washington penny of New Jersey. "One day an old man, a total stranger to me," said Mr. Haseltine, "came into my place with a number of old copper coins he wished to sell. After a little discussion in regard to the price I bought the lot, which seemed to consist altogether of trash, at the rate of about two cents apiece. They were dirty and in very poor condition. After they had been washed and the acids applied I discovered this one, the only one of its kind, to my knowledge, in existence. Dr. Maris came in to see me a few days after this and I offered him the coin for forty dollars. He refused to give more than thirty, and when he came back the next day to give me my own price for it I told him I had been thinking all night about that penny and it shouldn't go for less than a hundred. This made him angry and he went away. I sold it in New York two weeks afterwards for $150. That was eight years ago. After the man who bought it died, his coins [illegible] was sold at auction and the coin passed into the hands of L. G. Parmalee, of Boston, who paid $640 for it. This gentleman possesses the finest cabinet of coins in the United States. It contains more unique specimens than half a dozen other cabinets put together, and must have cost him not less than $50,000. A hundred thousand dollars couldn't buy it."

Overland receipts include 5 cks prunes, 59 cs can goods, 6 cs cheese, 10 kts 2 cs fish, 37 cs groceries, 15 cs sardines, 2 ctcs bacon, 1 crt hams, 75 hf candles, 43 cs lard, 1 cs cigars, 1 cs cigarettes, 10 pkgs tobacco, 100 cs bottled beer.

Importations into Astoria by regular steamers for July included 19 bxs apples, 5 anchors, 272 cks acid, 68 sks barley, 31 bxs bananas, 122 sks beans, 32 cs baking powder, 1 bbl 13 kgs 58 cs butter, 2 tc 11 do 1 bt cs bacon, 45 cs cheese, 18 bbls 27 bxs codfish, 68 cs 57 sks coffee, 16 cs cigars, 58 bxs candles, 101 cs corn beef, 20 cs candy, 105 cs coal oil, 128 sks coal, 114 cs canned goods, 17 sks 1 cs 3 bbls dried fruit, 9 cs extracts, 161 sks rye flour, 447 bxs green fruit, 50 green beef hides, 217 sks ground barley, 4 cs 8 bbls 31 tcs hams, 17 kgs 2 hf bbls 1 caborria, 5 cs honey, 61 cs 1 tcs 100 cks lard, 6 cs lemons, 4 crs 35 pigs lead, 8 cs lobsters, 105 cs labels, 107 sks middlings, 31 bls 26 sks meal, 4 cs 1 hf 1 kit mackerel, 72 cs milk, 70 sks malt, 14 tins matches, 10,4 [illegible] cs 125 bbls 55 cs empty salmon cans, 131 kgs nails, 6 sks nuts, 47 sks oats, 219 sks onions, 40 cs oysters, 40 bxs oranges, 154 cs paste, 80 kgs 2 bbls 13 cs pickles, 150 sks potatoes, 61 bxs raisins, 948 mats 63 sks rice, 25 cls rope, 11 pkgs spice, 23 hf 7 bbls salt meat, 17 pkgs starch, 2669 sks 19 bls salt, 581 bxs soap, 21 cs 45 kgs 2 bbls syrup, 201 hf 137 bbls 20 sks 17 bxs sugar, 236 sks tan bark, 39 pgs tea, 265 cs turpentine, 56 pkgs tobacco, 691 pigs 2784 bxs tin, 7 bbls 6 kgs vinegar, 27 cs wash powder.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours: 408 bbls flour, 182 ctls oats, 7303 lbs wool, 130 lbs hides, 52 cs eggs, 4 pkgs butter. Also 3,876 lbs wool, 395 lbs hides, 3 cs eggs from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS—All available tonnage on the spot is under charter outward, and there is nothing to work upon other than to arrive. There is doubtless something being done in this, but it is kept quiet.

WHEAT—To-day being a bank holiday in England reports are not at hand. Chicago quotes September options. San Francisco is in weaker feeling and light trading. Our own market presents nothing of interest, and promises to move slowly.

Mr. J. C. Firth, the proprietor of a great wheat, sheep and cattle raising farm, containing 56,000 acres, in New Zealand, has announced to his workmen that he would be compelled to stop cultivation and discharge all his hands owing to the low price received for wool and wheat. "It does not pay," he says, "even with the best of labor saving machinery, to farm in New Zealand." Yet he uses steam plows and traction engines imported from England, in addition to the best harvesting machines and other agricultural implements from the United States. This is a very important statement, and the New Zealand press admits that it is unpleasant truth. It seems that the chief cause of it is the high price of farm labor now prevailing in that country, from $1 to $1 50 per day and board being the customary farm laborer's pay.

OATS—Three round lots sold at 45c, which is the very extreme. It is doubtful if the price can be duplicated, as a steadily declining market is had. Quote 40@42½c.

PROVISIONS—The only quotable change to note is in eastern hams, which are now held firmly at 17c. Other cuts firm. Lard is going [illegible], but steady.

DRIED FRUITS—Work and dull, but not yet quoted down.

CHICKENS—Not so firm, $7 50 being best quotation for old. Young sell at $4 50@5 50.

EGGS—Again lower, and selling at 22@25, with liberal stocks.

GREEN FRUITS—A fresh supply of California will arrive to-night, and there will be little change from last prices. Oregon apples are now coming in quality, yet there is some request for California. Quote Oregon 25@50, and California $1 25@1 75 per box. Peaches and apricots more plentiful, best Oregon peaches bringing $4. Cantaloupes $2@2 25, and watermelons $4 50@6 50 per dozen. Tropical fruits promise no change, and the request is only fair.

POTATOES—No quotable improvement to note yet; stocks have been slightly reduced by lessened offerings.

Puget Sound Customs.

The following table will show a brief report for the gross amount of business at the custom house, Port Townsend, Puget Sound district, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1884, as compared with the year ending June 30, 1883:

RECEIPTS—1884.

Sub-port of Olympia	$[illegible]71 79
Sub-port of Roche harbor	1,476 12
Sub-port of [illegible]	440 69

VALUE OF IMPORTS.

1884.	1883.	Increase.
$ 37,971	$72,000	$65,971

It will be seen by the above that there was a decided increase over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1883. The value of imports for the fiscal year just closed is very nearly double that of last, while the value of exports was increased to the extent of $50,[illegible].

Markets by Telegraph.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Taking it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH V. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masern, Basutoland (S. Africa), March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. E. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only thoroughly effective blood-purifier, the only medicine that eradicates the poisons of Scrofula, Mercury, and Contagious Disease from the system.

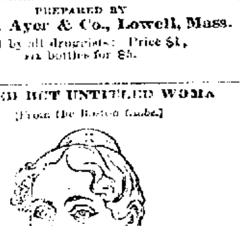
PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all druggists: Price $1, six bottles for $5.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN

[From the Boston Globe.]



Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of Falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, Irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity."

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.

Philadelphia, Pa. (2) Mrs. A. M. D.

CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS LIVER BLADDER AND URINARY ORGANS DROPSY GRAVEL DIABETES BRIGHT'S DISEASE PAINS IN THE BACK LOINS OR SIDE NERVOUS DISEASES RETENTION OR NON-RETENTION OF URINE.

By the use of this REMEDY, the Stomach and Bowels speedily regain their strength, and the blood is purified.

It is pronounced by hundreds of the best doctors to be the ONLY CURE for all kinds of Kidney Diseases.

It is purely vegetable, and cures when other medicines fail.

It is prepared expressly for these diseases, and has never been known to fail. One trial will convince you. For sale by all druggists.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
